President Cleveland Says He Will Ys:t Our Great Exposition.

BUT NOT ON THE OPENING DAY October 23d Selected for President's Day in Atlanta.

AN ADDRESS EXPECTED FROM HIM

All the Cabinet Members Accept the Invitation Extended by the Committee. Some of Their Wives Will Come, Too.

Washington, June 11 .- President Cleveland and all the members of the cabinet in the city, Secretary of State Olney, Secretary Carlisle, Secretary Lamont, Attorney General Harmon and Secretary Morton, to-day formally accepted the invitation extended to them by the Atlanta committee to visit the Cotton States and International President Cleveland, however, will not be in Atlanta to open the exposition, as was at first planned, but he, with the mem-bers of the cabinet, will there on President's Day-October 23d. This is in a with the information wired last night. The committee, which has been here since Sunday, was joined today by Colonel W. A. Hemphill and Alex W. Smith.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon they were escorted to the white house by Secretary Smith. The president received them in his private office, next to the cabinet chamber, on the second floor of the executive Secretary Smith presented each member of the committee in turn to Mr. Cleveland as follows: H. H. Cabaniss, W. A. Hemphill, Mayor Porter King, Frank P. Rice, Dr. Henry L. Wilson, Walter Howard, city editor of The Journal; J. G. Oglesby, George W. Harrison, Eugene C. Spalding, Alex W. Smith, A. J. West and Stewart F. Woodson The president's greeting was very cordial.

Mr. Cabaniss, chairman of the committee, on behalf of the directors of the exposition, presented Mr. Cleveland with the engraved invitation in a neat and graceful speech.

"Mr. President," said he, "a very pleasant duty has been assigned this committee. We come with authority from the directors to invite your excellency to be present at the opening of the Cotton States and International exposition and to put in motion the machinery, the throb of whose movement will, we trust, be felt throughout the length and breadth of our country.

Broad in Its Scope. committee begs the privilege of briefly saying that the Cotton States and International exposition is not local or sectional. The endeavor will be to interest ill sections of the union, and have them bring contributions of brain and skill and resource, and in friendly competition illustrate our growth and greatness and foreshadow the expectations of still greater growth in the years to come. This exposition will be the fullest expression of the hope of the south that the bitterness of the past is forgotten, and the belief that those who were once at enmity will not only live together in enduring peace, but strive with each other to see which can do the most toward making a perfect union, one and indissoluble, and making this republic

the best example of government among

"To show the wast and varied resource of the United States, its development and growth, is the one aim and endeavor of the originators and promoters of our ex position. We of Atlanta and the south remember with pleasure and gratitude a former visit of your excellency, and hope our people greeted you, giving evidence of our high esteem and warm devotion. Time has confirmed our fondest hopes that your administration would prove wise, courageous, and of lasting benefit. We feel that our trust and confidence have not beer misplaced. The hand that holds the reins of government has grown stronger, the head that plans for our safety and honor feels for our comfort and happiness has

"We ask you to come and see us again and witness a renewed manifestation of bur regard, and receive renewed assurance that we stand with you in all you do to wisely rule the people of this land."

Mayor King Has a Word. At the conclusion of Mr. Cabaniss's address, Mayor King, of Atlanta, stepped forward. As the official representative of the city government of Atlanta, he said it afforded him pleasure to add his invitation to that extended by the chairman of the committee. "Our people remember," said he, "most pleasantly and gratefully the occasion of your former visit to Atlanta "The city authorities as well as the good people of Atlanta are prepared to extend to you a cordial welcome to our city. We hope you will not fail to come, and as we all love Mrs. Cleveland, it would also be extremely gratifying to us if she could accompany you on the trip."

Mr. Cleveland made no formal response, but in a pleasant conversational tone he replied to the invitations by simply saying that he had been considering the matter. and saw nothing to do except to surrender, This placed everybody in a good humor Cleveland then explained that if he came on September 18th and officially opened the exposition, he could only remain a few hours. After some slight discussion was decided that he should leave here on October 21st on a special train with such of the members of the cabinet and their wives as could attend, and arrive in Atlanta at 4 o'clock p. m. the next day.

October 23d President's Day.

October 23d will be President's Day at the exposition, and Mr. Cleveland will probably shook hands with Mr. Cleveland and retired. They were charmed with their re-The committee were driven in carriages to the different departments, ac companied by Secretary Smith, and they extended formal invitations to each cabi net minister and his wife to accompany the presidential party. They were most cordially received by all, and in every in stance the invitation was accepted. They re especially impressed with the reception accorded them by the new attorney general, Judge Harmon.

The committee will not leave for Atlanta until tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. They are all in high spirits over the complete success of their visit, and are full of enthus asm for the exposition.

THE TRAMMELL-CHAPMAN FIGHT.

Democrats Say the Revenue Agent Must Go-A Hot Fight. Washington, June 11.-The fight between Collector Trammell and Revenue Agent Chapman had no issue today. They were both before Commissioner Miller for an hour, and Assistant United States Attorney Tinsley Rucker was here on a telegraphic summens from Miller. Rucker was not called today. All the parties concerned seem to have a cue that silence is golden. They are keeping their tongues between their teeth, and no amount of persuasion will induce them to so much as wag them in a whisper. Even good-natured Tinny Rucker seems afraid to crack a joke on the street, lest he may be called to account for it later on. Commissioner Miller says he has not yet got at the bottom facts in the case, and until he does he will refuse to make any statement about it. The fight, which is be ing made by Trammell, is to secure either the removal of Chapman or his transfer to some other field of operations. Trammell's friends charge that Chapman's interference in attempting to prevent the removal of Hetherington and Miss Mc-Naught is not only unwarranted, but is prejudicial to the discipline of the office. He is a republican, and Trammell does not want him there. In his attitude Trammell is supported by Secretary Smith, Senator Bacon, Governor Atkinson and other Georgia democrats, and also, presumably by Congressman Carter Tate, who dropped into Washington very opportunely today. Chapman, on the other hand, contends that Trammell's action in dismissing Hetherington cripples the service, and he alloves so it is said that the secret of Trammell's dismissal of Hetherington was his activity in bringing the whitecappers to justice. Chapman himself was active in these cases. Rucker, who had charge of the prosecution, will be called upon to give all the information he can on the subject. Commissioner Miller has shown great faith in Chapman's efficiency heretofore, and if he stands by him now, it is said that the whole matter will be appealed over Miller's head to Secretary Carlisle, and if necessary, to the president himself. If Chapman is transferred or dismissed it may lead to the removal of Deputy Commissioner Wilson, who, it is said, has had too much influence with Commissioner Miller in this and similar matters.

A Georgia democrat who is on the inside said today:

"Chapman will be either discharged or transferred. We don't care which, but he is a republican, and we don't want him down there. Then look out for Wilson's head. It falls within a month.' A very high treasury official who knows the facts indorsed this opinion. "There can be but one outcome of this row," said he. "Trammell, in the nature of things, must be sustained. Then if he and Chapman cannot adjust their differences, Chapman will be garroted. That is all there is of it." After all, it would appear that a mountain is being made out of a mole hill. Chapman, a republican, is persona non grata to Trammell, the democratic collector, who wants him removed or transferred because he is interfering with discipline.

International League of Press Clubs Meets in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, June 11 .- For the first time since its abandonment by the city council, the doors of the historic room in Inde pendence hall, which for years was used as the chamber of commerce, were thrown wide open this morning to the delegates to the fifth annual convention of the International League of Press Clubs. Over one hundred delegates and alternates as-sembled there at 10 o'clock, and were met by Mayor Warwick, who welcomed the visiting journalists to the "City of Brother-ly Love". ly Love.

Mr. Clark Howell, of Atlanta, Ga., prestdent of the league, eloquently responded. The hall of the convention was beautifully decorated with nowers and plants while on the walls were suspended the coats of arms of the thirteen original states. Among the delegates were many representatives from the wonien's press clubs of the country, among whom was Mrs. Loulie M. Gordon, of Atlanta, Ga. one of the vice presidents of the international league, and who is a zealous worker in the march of progress which has characterized the great metropolitan city of the south.

LEWIS REDWINE DISCHARGED. He Goes from the Hospital Back to the Office.

Columbus, O., June 11.-Louis Redwine, the bank wrecker of Atlanta, Ga., who has been in the hospital since May 5th, was discharged today and returned to his position in the secretary's office in the Ohio penitentiary. When Redwine was admitted to the hospital it was thought he would never leave it alive, as he gave every evidence of being in the last stages of consumpiton. His case has attracted a great deal of attention and a strong effort is being made to secure his release. The Mortgage Signed.

Baltimore, June 11.—At a meeting of the reorganization committee of the Georgia Southern and Florida Railroad Company today, the mortgage to secure $1,000,000 r cent gold bonds upon the line ecuted and signed. WILL BE A HUGE ONE

Be the Largest Ever Seen.

TEN THOUSAND PEOPLE ARE THERE

That Goldbug Caucus Was Not a Marker to This.

MANY PUBLIC MEN ARE ON HAND

Almost a Quorum of Congress Present. The Strength of the Silver Movement Is Attested by the Attendance.

Memphis, Tenn., June 11 .- (Special.) -- The situation here is unparalleled in the history of conventions. Tomorrow at 2 o'clock the convention will be formally opened and when the gavel falls the greatest number of delegates that ever met together for a single purpose will come to order. When one considers that this gathering was called by a baker's dozen of citizens here who had formed themselves into a local bimetallic league, and all of them obscure citizens with no more than even a limited local acquaintance, the intensity of the silver sentiment in the south can be faintly appreciated.

Every incoming train is loaded with delegates and nearly all the prominent states men of the south are here. Conservative estimates place the number of delegates at 2,500, and the visitors who attend from interest in the movement to hear the speeches will probably exceed 10,000.

The committee of the league here have already seen that the auditorium with a capacity of 7,000 will be wholy insufficient to accommodate the eager throngs, and have secured the Grand opera house with a capacity of 3,500 for the grand overflow meeting. It is said tonight that probably the new lyceum will also be used for that purpose. A prominent bimetallist said tonight that if it was lawful, a free silver bill could be passed here tomorrow, since a quorum of both houses of congress would be present.

Of the senate, Harris and Bate, of Tennessee; Jones and Berry, of Arkansas; George and McLaurin, of Mississippi; Turpie, of Indiana; Tillman, of South Carolina; Stewart, of Nevada; Marion Butler of (North Carolina; Shoup, of Idaho, and Blanchard, of Louisiana, will be present, and there are letters here from other democratic senators expressive of their sympathy with the objects of the convention. It as that they are all present or account-

Congressmen Are Thick.

The members of the lower house to take part in the deliberations are too numerous to mention in this disputch. It is impossible to foreshadow just what will be done. but a correspondent from expressions gathered from the majority of leading men makes the following forecast. It is likely that Colonel Casey Young will deliver an address of welcome and that Senator Turple will be chosen permanent chairman and Ben Wade, of Tennessee, reading clerk of the fifty-third congress, permanent secretary. It is not improbable that Senator Jones, of Arkansas, will be appointed chairman of the committee on resolutions.

There will be no trouble about the resolutions. Everybody is of one mind on that subject-16 to 1, with no frills. The discusin the corridors of the hotels indicate that there will be a plain declaration against a single silver standard and a single gold standard but for a bimetallic standard and a free use of both metals as the primary money of the country.

If Senator Turple is elected chairman, he will address the convention upon assuming the chair. His will be one of the great speeches of the occasion, as he is regarded by the silver people as its ablest defender. He will probably be followed by Alexander Delmar, of California, and then by W. J. Bryan, of Nebraska. Tomorrow evening. at the auditorium, the greatest attraction of the meeting will hold the attention of the convention-Joseph C. Sibley, of Penn-The admiration for Sibley is really wonderful. Gompers Refutes Cleveland.

The silver people here are elated ov the speech of Samuel Compers last night In response to an invitation to be present and take part in the convention. The gold men say that the invitation was a ruse of the local silver men to secure an expres-sion from Gompers for the influence it was supposed such an expression would exert among the labor people here. If such was their intention, it was an admirable success. It is claimed by the silver folks that Gompers's speech takes all the starch out of the argument of Mr. Cleveland and Secre tary Carlisle, that they advocate the gold standard because they want the laborer to have a dollar that will buy just as much as possible. They say that the laborers know what is best for them, and resent the posing of the Millionaires of Wall street as champions of labor.

Telegrams tonight convey the information that special trains tomorrow morning will bring in thousands of delegates. The hotels are already crowded, and arrange ments have been made to quarter delegates in private houses.

If anybody has heretofore labored under the impression that the silver craze was temporary, he may as well disabuse his mind. If to favor silver is to be crazy these people, and the people of the twentyseven states they represent, are hopelessly and incurably insane. A casual observer can see that the free coinage of silver in here to stay. It is the one paramount and controlling issue now, and will remain so until it is settled finally upon a clean-cut well-defined vote of the American people on that subject. Gold Is Being Used Freely.

Much indignation is expressed here over the sudden change from silver to gold ad. rocates. The silver men charge that it is the money of Wall street used to clos every avenue of information to the people. It is very probable that the committee on resolutions will make some expression on this subject. If it be true that these papers are bought with eastern money, the expenditure as a political investment is very questionable, for the silver people assert and even the gold men believe that it is proving a boomerang. The statement from Mr. Schwab, of the committee of seventy, in this morning's dispatches, has created considerable amusement where the silver cause is growing daily.

The allusion to Colonel Patterson's great The Memphis Bimetallic Convention Will humor, for everywhere that gentleman has spoken his audiences have immediately proceeded to organize a bimetallic league and send delegates to Memphis as soon as the speech was ended.

FREE SILVER REPUBLICANS

Will Meet in Topeka on June 25th.

To Indorse Free Silver. Topeka, Kas. June 11.-A call was issued today to leading republicans of Kansas who favor the free coinage of silver to meet in this city June 25th, one week after the state convention of the bimetallic league. The object of the meeting is to take such action as will insure the indorsement of the free coinage policy by the re-putlican party. The fact that the officers of the bimetallic league are populists has caused district of the bimetallic convention, which meets in Topeka, June 18th. The call is signed by P. H. Coney, of Topeka, and A. L. Sponsler, editor of Tae

DELEGATES FROM DALLAS.

The City Was Not Represented at the Goldbug Convention. Selma, Ala., June 11.—(Special.)—Selma will be represented at Memphis, A number minent citizens have gone to the con vention. There were no Selmians at the "goldbug sound-money convention," held semetime ago, as there was hardly any one take interest in the affair. Selma and Dallas county are for silver.

BRYAN ON FINANCE.

He Feels Sure the Party Will Declare for True Bimetallism.

Jackson, Miss., June 11.—Congressman Bryan, of Nebraska, addressed a large and enthusiastic audience here tonight on the financial question. His speech was the strongest ever heard in this city; the people were captivated by the power of his logic and his oratory, but at the close a bombshell was thrown in the camp. One of the audience asked:

"Will you support the democratic ticket in case a gold standard platform is adopt-ed at the next national convention?" Quiet fell on the great throng, Mr. Bryan paused a moment and quoted what Mr. Whitney had said about the party going to pieces in case a silver platform adopted. He was pressed to answer the question by every administration man in the house and then declared: "I was born and reared a democrat; I was nursed at a democratic mother's breast and taught democracy by a democratic father, but will never vote against my principles. I am as certain the democratic convention will adopt a double standard as I am that I am standing here, but if it does not-if the single gold standard is adopted-I would die in my tracks before I would vote the ticket."

IOWA POPULISTS MEET.

They Will Nominate a Straight Populist Ticket. Des Moines, Ia., June 11.—The delegates to the populist state convention were slow in assembling and it was after 11 o'clock when Chairman R. G. Scott, of the state central committee, called the assemblage to order. There was an attendance of over 400. The temporary chairman spoke for forty minutes, roundly denouncing the two old parties for their duplicity on the money question and their subserviency to trusts, corporations and the money power. At the close of the address the regular committees were appointed and a recess was taken.

The committees on resolutions and on permanent organization are in the hands of the anti-Weaver crowd and it is posi-tively certain that the convention will reminate a straight populist ticket on the Omaha platform, with free silver as a minor issue. There are no candidates for the nominations. When the convention assembled at 1:55 o'clock E. H. Gillette was made permanent chairman.

INTRODUCED TO HIS ASSOCIATES. The New Attorney General at His

First Cabinet Meeting. Washington, June 11-Judson Harmon, the attorney general, arrived in the city early this morning and drove to the Arlington hotel. Afterwards he proceeded to the state department, where he took the oath of office as head of the department of justice, before Justice Harlan of the supreme gourt, shortly before 11 o'clock a. m. Thence, accompanied by Mr. Olney, he walked over to the white house to the cabinet meeting, when he was formally intro-duced to his associates in the cabinet by

Secretary of State Olney, his predecessor. Attorney General Harmon's welcome was a cordial one on all hands, but especially from Secretary Carlisle, who was the only member of the cabinet previously acquaint-

DETECTIVES AT FERNANDINA. Two Pinkerton Men Said To Be There in Spain's Interest.

Fernandina, Fla., June 11.—(Special.)— Two Pinkerton men from New York, who have had business here before and who were spotted at once, arrived this morning and have taken rooms at a private residence, presumably for the purpose of keep ing a better watch on things of a fillibus-tering nature. The news which has gone abroad to the effect that the Cuban leaders were to again congregate here to ge their heads together, is evidently largely responsible for the presence of these agents of the Spanish government which, how over, does not seem to affect the purpos of the former, as mail addressed to Carlos M. de Cespedes continues to arrivé, to-gether with an occasional letter for Quesada and others of the revolution party.

One who is admitted to the secret councils of the insurgents, explained that the meeting which will be held here is for the purpose of consummating some arrange ments which, if successful, will create more surprise and confusion in the Spanish ranks than any move thus far made by the insurgents. General Quesada, who has re cently arrived at Tampa and who is a relative of Gonzalo Quesada, bears the scars of many conflicts in the unsuccessful struggle of 1868. He has remained in South and Central Arrerica since that time. Since the present outbreak he has been engaged in raising funds in the United States of Colombia, and has succeeded in getting a large amount of money and enlisting several companies of soldiers, which will be utilized in carrying out the plans decided upon at the approaching meeting. The revolutionist yacht is still anchored in this harbor, near Victoria square, and is constantly watched. Meanwhile it is being repainted and fitted up with new salls, presumably in anticipation of early developments. Colonel Borden, owner of the Minim, declares that his recent cruise to Cumberland and other places had no significance whatever, as it was only a pleasure trip. He positively denied that Colonel Collazo and his brother were abroad. Colombia, and has succeeded in getting a

His Injunction Is Dissolved and the Original Bill Dismissed.

THE REGISTRATION LAW STANDS

It Seems To Be the Unanimous Opinion of the Court.

GREAT JOY IN SOUTH CAROLINA

The Whites Are Delighted at the Result Negroes Are Talking of Moving to Some Other State.

Richmond, Va., June 11.-The celebrated South Carolina registration case was decided in the United States court of appeals here today. The state wins, Judge Goff's famous injunction is dissolved and the original bill will be dismissed. The decision of the court was announced by Judge Hughes shortly before 3 o'clock. An cutline of the court's position was given, Judge Hughes submitted a strong individual opinion and the order reversing Judge Goff was entered at once.

None of the counsel who took part in the argument were present. Judge Hughes, in a decision, said:

"This case was heard by the chief justice, Judge Seymour and myself, on Friday last. We thought it was of a character to call for an early decision and it was decided, after adjournment on Friday, that the decision should be announced today and a decree entered. The case was exraustively argued at the bar, and nothing can be gained by waiting a further time for the examination of the briefs. We are of the opinion that the injunction which was granted in the case ought to be dissolved and the bill dismissed. A decree to that effect will be entered at once. The opinion of the court on the important questions presented by record will be prepared by the chief justice and filed and reported as scon as practicable. Meantime a brief statement of the grounds of the decision prepared by the chief justice is now filed." The chief justice expressed himself as follows "The judiciary act of March 3, 1891, contemplates prompt decision on appeals such as this and as we cannot give extended expression to our views at this time we content ourselves with a brief statement of our conclusions. Under section 7 of that act, where, upon a hearing in equity in a circuit court, an injunction is granted or continued by an interlocutory creer or de-cree, in a cause in which an appeal may be taken from such interlocutory order or decree granting or continuing such injunction to the circuit court of appeals. By section 5 appeals or writs of error may be taken to the supreme court in any case in which the constitutionality of a law of a state is claimed to be in contraven-tion to the constitution of the United States. But although the constitutionality of a state law may be drawn in question in the circuit court, yet if the case may be disposed of on other grounds, not in-volving the invalidity of such law, we think this court has jurisdiction on appeal.—Carry vs. railway company, 150 United States, 170; United States vs. John, Motion To Dismiss Overruled. "If in the instance of appeals from interlocutory orders on consideration, it should appear that the question of the constitutionality of the law is controlling and must be decided, the cause can be remanded to the circuit court that application to the supreme court for certiorari may be made American Construction Company vs. railway compuny, 148 United States, 372.

"In the case the bill of complaint challenged the constitutionality of certain laws of South Carolina, but the question was raised on the threshold whether the case made was one of equitable cognizance, and this being so, we sustain the jurisdiction and overrule the motion to dismiss. The jurisprudence of the United States has aiways recognized the distinction between the law and equity, as under the constitution matter of substance as well as form has procedure.—Cater vs. Allen, 149 United States, 451; Mississippi mills vs. Cohn, 150 United States, 202-205.

"It is well settled that a court of chancery is conversall only with questions of property and the maintenance of civil rights. The court has no jurisdiction in matters of a political nature, or to inter fere with the duties of any department except under special c cumstances and when necessary for th protection of rights of property; or in mat ters merely criminal or merely informal which do not affect any right of property.-- vs. Sawyer, 124 United States, Fletcher vs. Tuttle, 151 Illinois, 41; Hardesty vs. Taft, 23 Maryland, 513; ex parte Lumseden, South Carolina, 19 E. rep., 749. "The equitable powers of the court can case of equitable cognizance and there can be no such case, in the federal courts, where there is plain and adequate remedy at law nor does illegality alone afford ground for equitable interference.—Shelton vs. Platt 139 United States, 591.

"Tested by these principles, the bill of complaint cannot be maintained, for it as setts no threatened intringement of rights of property or civil rights and no adequate ground for equity or interposition. Eeing of this opinion, the restraining or-ders must be reversed and the cause re-manded with directions to dismiss the bill." The opinion filed by Judge Hughes is an expansive treatment of the question raised in the case. The other judges who sat have not had an opportunity to see the paper, se Judge Hughes is solely responsi

Opinion of Judge Hughes.

Judge Hughes's opinion is, in part, us follows. The judge gives a careful review of the record and continuing says: "There is nothing in the record to show that the complainant is a man of color, or that those for whom he sues are col-ored persons. The bill contains no allegation that the propositions of law complained of were devised against the com plainant or those for whom he sues on account of their race, color or previous condition of servitude. There is nothing in the averments of the bill from which i may naturally, or must necessarily, be inferred that the complainant and those for whom he sues are citizens of color. There are no averments in the bill which show that the case falls within the pur-view of the fifteenth amendment of the constitution of the United States.

Keep Politics Out of Court. "In arriving at this conclusion I have not considered the question whether or not the registration laws of South Carolina violate the federal constitution or laws. I propose to rest my opinion upon the ground of the independence of the dif-

CORPSE WASN'T SPOILED.

But the Fastidious Guests Kicked Because the Ice Went in the Tea.

Charlotte, N. C., June 11.—(Special.)—Mr. George W. Kittelle, formerly proprietor of the Buford house in this city, but who has been proprietor of the Phoenix hotel in Winston for three years past, has made an assignment to D. H. Broader. He turned over all of his property, including hotel furniture, etc., to his creditors, the largest one of whom is said to be W. A. Eyler, butcher, who holds a claim of $576. The amounts due other creditors in Winston aggregate several hundred dollars.

It is said that Mr. Kittelle's assignment was precipitated by a sensation which developed last Friday night, when a number of the guests left the hotel. The cause of the sensation was the charge that the ice upon which the body of the late Charles Johnston was placed was afterwards used in icing the tea and water for the guests of the hotel. It was claimed that a rubber sheet was between the ice and the body and the ice was as pure as any that could have been used. But the fact of it having once been used in cooling a corpse was more than the guests could stand and they were not slow to raise trouble. Mr. Kittelle came to Charlotte from the north. During his proprietorship of the Buford he was a model landlord in all respects and kept an excellent hotel.

Tennessee Refuses To Give Either to

Nashville or Atlanta. Nashville, Tenn., June 11.—(Special.)— Both houses of the general assembly took brief recesses today in order that the members might meet Mrs. Stonewall Jackson, who was calling on Governor Turney. Senator Caldwell introduced a bill correcting errors made in the enrollment of the assessment law passed at the regular session. As the senate passed the penitentiary bill today this is now the only bill before that body. The senate made several changes in the house penitentiary bill, the most important being that convicts that cannot be provided for by the state shall be leased to the highest bidder, instead of to parties building levees and new and independent lines of railway.

The house spent the day on the appropriation bill, rejecting an amendment giving $75,000 for the Tennessee centennial, and also one giving $1,000 for a historical exhibit at the Atlanta exposition

THIS IS HOSS SENSE.

The Doctor Gives a Good Talk to the Northern Methodists. Boston, Mass., June 11.—At the Methodist ministers' meeting yesterday, Rev. Dr. E. E. Hoss, editor of The Nashville Christian Advocate, the official organ of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, delivered an address on "The Negro Problem as a Southerner Sees It." He said in part:

"I suppose that there are many things upon which we can agree. For instance, we are all agreed that the most iniquitous business that the world ever saw business that the world ever saw was the awful African slave trade that landed so many negroes on our shores. We are also agreed that the wiping out of slavery was what should have been done, and I have yet to find a single southerner who does not believe with me. I don't mean to say that all the southerners are just to say that all the southerners are just satisfied by the manner in which slavery was abolished."

He denied a prevalent belief that the negro is increasing so fast that in a short-time the race will predominate in the southern states, and said: "There never was a greater delusion. The politicians' specter of negro domina-tion is only a specter after all. Inevitably the ultimate ascendancy of the white peo-ple in the south will inure to the benefit of the negro. There is one fact in regard to which it is well to make up our minds definitely now, and that is the colored race is absolutely sure to continue a col-ored race. The colored people in the ored race. south are rapidly accumulating property-they are getting homes. I occasionally make speeches to the colored people in the south, and I have just four points. tell them to get religion, to get married, to get an education and to get a home. And I regard this accumulation of property as a fact of supreme importnce. The negro is taxed for $50,000,000 of property The advance in education is due largely to help and influence from the north. Most of the colored schools have been estab lished by northern donations. There a great many of the colored people whom I cannot say the complimentary things I have been trying to say. In some communities there is the densest barbarism. The negro has often been the victim of mob law when it was not merited, but often-shall I say it? Shall I speak the truth? (Cries of 'Yes! yes!') Often the outrages have been such as to make the blood of any man boil within him. And it seems to me that the leaders here at the north lay a much greater emphasis on the penalties which are inflicted than they do on the outrages."

The Seizing of Stuff Going Into the State Marked for "Private Use" Continues. A Conference at Columbia.

Columbia, S. C., June 11.-(Special.)-The legislative committee appointed to examine the books of the dispensary made its report yesterday. It is the first report made as to the workings of the dispersary that a layman could understand, and while it does not show any half-million-dollar profits a year, as was promised when the dispensary was first established, it does show the business to be in a healthy condition, and a far larger profit to have been made than many persons ever expected from the dispensary. The report shows the total profits made since the establishment of the dispensary, on July 1, 1893, to have been $160,287.48. Of this $146,-607.69 was made during Commissioner Traxler's term, from July 1, 1893, to February 1, 1895, and $13,679.79 during Commissioner Mixson's first quarter, ending April

The receipts for the quarter ending April 39th, were: February, $68,285.16; March, $64,464.99; April, $71,016.02.

The "Forty Immortals," The executive committee of the forty has been called to meet in this city on Thursday. The forty is that factional element in state politics which commenced "peace and harmony" movement, by issuing an address during the last session of the legislature to all in favor of unity. Their work has been somewhat forestall ed by the Tillman-Hemphill-Evans Barncombination, which claims to be work-for the same end. Where the difference between the forty and the Tillman-Hemphill-Evans-Barnwell combination exists no one is able to say, except that each set of leaders is trying to get the credit for bringing about unity among the white

Another faction has arisen within the last few weeks. It is being led by Representatives Weston and Patton, of Richland county. It stands on the same ground with the Tillman-Hemphili combination except that it holds for a qualification of the suffrage that will apply to all men alike, disfranchising as few white men and as many negroes as possible. The Tillman-Hemphill combination want a limitation of the suffrage that will disfran chise no white man, except for crime, and will disfranchise as many negroes as pos-sible. Both of these factions advocate going into the primary, in which white men alone shall be allowed to participate. The forty are somewhat uncertain in their position as to the primary, with decided leanings, however, towards the primary. There are still two other factions in the state—the extreme reformers, led by Senator Irby and Congressman Stanyarne Wilson, who want no concessions made to the conservatives, who do not want the reformers to go into the primary, but who advocate a straight fight; and the extreme conservatives, lead by The State. These are very much of the same feelings as the Irby faction. They wish to appeal to the general election, when they hope to be able to get enough votes from the colored people of the state to put the re-formers to fight. All factions are mov-ing slowly now, and each is watching the other very closely. From present indica-tions it seems that the factions advocating the primary are vastly in the majority.

ferent departments of the government upon the impolicy of interference by the courts in questions which will result in dragging them constantly into the arena of party politics; and upon the federal prinple that each department of the govern-ment, and each officer thereof, high or low, has the right to administer, according to his best judgment, the duties imposed upon him by the laws creating his office. As illustrating these general principles, I refer to the following decisions: Mississippi vs. Johnson, 4 Wall, 475; Gaines vs. Thompson, 7 Wall, 347; Louisiana vs. Jumel, 107 United States, 711; Hagood vs. Southern, 117 United States, 52; Ayers in re, 123 United States, 443; in re Sawyer, 124 United States, 209. It is useless to cite the many cases which bear on the questions arising in this case and so profusely at the bar. "So far as the rights of the individual complaint in the bill were concerned, it may have been competent for the court to grant individual relief. The supreme court of the United States, the other day, granted relief from the payment of an income tax to the individual complainant in the suit before it, but it went no further. On the authority of Mississippi vs. Johnson, supra, we may assume that it would not have entertained a bill for enjoining internal revenue officers of the government from collecting income taxes generally. The judicial power covered the right to grant individual relief, but did not extend to the general power of repealing the law imposing the tax as to the entire public.
"I repeat that in the case at bar it may have been competent for the court to grant individual relief. But the bill asked more. It asked similar relief for all citizens of the county situated like the complainant. It practically asked relief for members of a political party forming a portion of that people to whom the legislature was solely responsible for its laws and to whom alone genius of our institutions makes the legislature responsible. Moreover, brought the court into immediate and active contact with party contestation. made the court a controlling factor in party strife. I can imagine nothing more pernicious than a direct participation by the judiciary, by judicial action, in the politics of the people. The bill asked practically that the process of registration under the laws of the state should be sus-pended in an entire county during the pleasure of the court and that all the citizens of a county, not then registered as voters, should be denied the right of suf frage during that pleasure. It seems to me that the mere statement of this view of the case shows that the injuncion was improvidently granted.

"I think the bill should be dismissed."

PROPOSE TO EMIGRATE.

South Carolina Negroes Say They Must

Move to Another State. Columbia, S. C., June 11.-(Special.)-The news of the reversal of Judge Goff's decision on the registration laws came to the people of Columbus as a shock, exhilerating to the mass of white people, but terribly depressing in its effects upon the ne-groes and very chilling to their white allies. Attorney General Barber was probably the most delighted man in the city. He was the recipient of many congratulations, but would have nothing further to say than that he was highly gratified. The other members of the administration in the city were exuberant and they all seem to feel that a great victory has been gained for the state. Governor Evans is in Memphis, so no expression of opinion could be had

The negro leaders are very much dis tressed over the matter. Few of them will have much to say. Rev. E. H. Coit, pastor of the largest colored church in the city says he will advise a wholesale emigration. Rev. W. D. Chappell, chairman of the Ministerial Union, which has been con trolling the policy of the negroes for some time, says that as for himself, he will leave the state and that he does not see how the negro race can afford to risk its chances of prosperity in South Carolina with the pres gration to some of the other southern tates. He believes the south, outside of South Carolina, to be the best place for the negro. Rev. Daniels, another negro leader, agrees with Rev. Chappell.

A race convention to consider the condition of the negro race in the crisis that is upon them has been called for July 10th The negroes throughout the state have been called upon to meet on July 4th at their several county seats in mass meeting to send delegates to this convention. Montgomery Has Subscribed $52,000 to the New Cotton Mill Enterprise. An Old Suit Settled.

Montgomery, Ala., June 11 .- (Special.)-The Alabama commissioners to arrange for the state display at the Atlanta Cotton States and International exposition held a meeting in the Commercial and Industrial Association rooms this morning and six or seven plans for the building for this state were submitted. The commission, which is presided over by Hon, H. D. Lane, decided upon the plan submitted by Messrs. Wheelock & Son, of Birmingham. The building is octagonal in shape and is sev-enty feet in diameter and two stories in heights. The building is largely glass and will present a most attractive appearance, both by day and night. The commission is extremely anxious that the people of Montgomery should collect their portion of the money to make the state display at as early a date as possible.

Doing Well. At the monthly meeting of the Mont-gomery Commercial Association here to-night the committee appointed last week on raising funds for building a cotton factory reported the collection of $52,000. Quarantine, Staten Island, N. Y., June 11 Alvah H. Doty, health officer of the port of New York, arrived home yesterday from New Orleans. He left here eight days ago with the intention of visiting some of the important southern ports and also Havana, traveling by way of l'ampa and Key West, Fla., but on his arrival at Tampa he found the quarantine regulations against Cuba were so stringent that he could not return by this route. He made a thorough inspection of the quarantine systems of Port Tampa and New Orleans At Port Tampa he found there was a very strong dread of an outbreak of yellow fever and a tenday quarantine was in force against all vessels arriving from Havana carrying passengers who could not show acclimatization certificates from the medical inspector at Havana.

DEBS DIDN'T SHOW UP When the Marshal Wanted Him To Go to Jail.

Chicago, June 11.-President Debs, of the American Railway Union, entered the office of United States Marshal Arnold at 11:30 o'clock this morning and reported for removal to jail to serve the remainder of his sentence for contempt of court. He told the officers that he expected to leave home last night, but he found several personal and American Railway Union matters demanding his attention. He said he was glad to know he and his colleagues were going to spend their vacations, as ne called it, in the Woodstock, Ill., jail, where they had previously been.

"As a matter of course it is disagreeable," he added, "but I have become phiosophical. By the authority vested in me I have appointed Frank W. Phelan, of St. Lovis, an ex-conductor, to act for the American Railway Union during my ab-sence. He will go to St. Paul next Monday to meet President Hill, of the Greet Northern, in regard to the reinstatement of American Railway Union men and I am onfident that there will be no strike on that account in view of the agreement Mr. Hill made with us." Messrs. Keliher, Howard, Rogers, Elliott,

Debs Is Missing. Debs did not put in an appearance at the marshal's office at 4 o'clock to surrender marshal's office at 4 o'clock to surrende his liberty and he failed to be at the de pot, although he knew what time the train started. The marshal, as the responsible officer, was vexed, but not afraid that the American Railway Union president would evade arrest. As the party was leaving for the depot the marshal said:

"Debs told me he had some business to attend to and friends to see. If he does not turn up at the station I will send him along on the next train."

Up to midnight, however, Debs had not made his appearance. The missing man arrived in the city from his Terre Haute home today and went to the marshal's office, arriving there at 11:30 o'clock. He was in a jolly frame of mind and carried a bulging value, which he left in care of the marshal when he went away in company of a friend.

TO STOP THE FILIBUSTERS.

Orders to Customs Officers on Florida Coast.

Washington, June 11 .- The navy department is co-operating with the state department in preventing filibustering expeditions from leaving the United States to aid the Cuban rebels. In addition to ordering the United States cruiser Raleigh to guard the southern coast and look out for fillibistering craft, Secretary Olney, of the state department, has asked that this department aid in preventing filibusters from shipping arms, men and ammunition from southern ports to the Cuban rebels. The Spanish minister, Senor Dupuy de Lome, has had several interviews with Secretary Olney during the past two days on the subject, and has communicated to him the information furnished by his agents, who are stationed along the southern seacoast and at New York. The delicacy of the situation makes it difficult for the United States government to act officially. As pointed out in these dispatches two weeks ago, the fact that a vessel has arms aboard is not prima facie evidence that those arms are in-tended for the Cuban rebels, and would not be so regarded even if the vessels cleared for Cuban ports. The most in disputable proof must be obtained that the arms are to be delivered to those who will use them against a country friendly to use them against a country friendly to the United States before United States ustoms officials can interfere. This proof customs of the control of the control of the customs of the customs and already the United States has a suit on hand for selzing alms on vessels which it was charged at the time were intended for the Cuban cause. Nevertheless, the United States cannot disregard the warning of the Spanish minister, as we are on friendly terms with Spain, and cannot omit all proper precautions to prevent any act by our citizens which Spain would regard as unfriendly. Acting on the request of Secre tary Olney, these instructions were issued to collectors of customs:

"Treasury Department, Washington, D., June 11.—To Collectors of Customs and Others: It is a matter of rumor that a various points in the United States at-tempts are making to enlist men to equip and arm vessels, and by other illegal measires, to aid the insurrection now in pro gress in the island of Cuba. While this department has not been furnished with tangible evidence confirmatory of such rumors, it seems of great importance that no possible opportunity be given for complaints that the government of the United States has in any respect fallen short of its full duty as a friendly nation. Coilecfors of customs of the several districts between New York and Brownsville are specially enjoined to see to it that the neutrality laws of the United States, par-ticularly sections 5289 and 5290 of the Revised Statutes, are fully complied with.'

The repayment of the loans is to be secured by pledging any personal property of the company and by selling or assigning any accounts receivable representing the pro-ceeds of the sale of goods manufactured by the company. The receivers say that material, manufactured goods and accounts, which were hypothecated by company prior to the appointment of the receivers, as collateral to loans made to it, were between $500,000 and $600,000 in excess of the loans, and they expect to sell manufactured product of between $400,000 and $500,000 during the present month, provided they can obtain the loans for the purchase of raw materials. A FIGHT WITH MACEO. Government Troops Have More Skirmishes with the Insurgents. New York, June 11.-A special cable dis-patch to The Herald, from Havana, says: "Colonel Canellas has encountered Jose Maceo at Sonoruco, the result being that Lieutenant Mariano Nieto and two diers were wounded. On the rebels side two were killed and seven wounded. Four guns and a large quantity of ammunition were also captured. Lieutenant Colonel Basillo met a party of rebels at Sevilla, the result being that one man was wound-ed and the insurgents abandoned their flag and other property.

"At Matanzas there" has been an engagement with the troops of Maria Cristina, who are guarding the coast between Punta Gorda and Sabanilla, resulting in the death of Andres Bermudez and the wounding of Jose Perez Collez. The govnor-general will start today for Puerto incipe. "Salvador Cisneros, the marquis of Santa Lucia, has taken up arms at Puerto Prin-cipe, and is accompanied by several stu-dents and deputies.

"General Campos, with several important persons, will visit Puerto Principe and take active measures to suppress the revolution. Of the volunteers, five were Rilled and one has been wounded in an encounter with the insurgents."

The Richmond Dispatch on the Decision in the South Carolina Case.

Richmond, Va., June 11.—The Dispatch will say editorially in the morning; "The injunction of Judge Goff, whereby he undertook to rescind and annul the registration laws of South Carolina, was dissolved yesterday by the United States court of appeals. This is a great victory for the state of South Carolina and a corresponding setback for Judge Goif, we playing his role of Judge Bond, I with the same ill-success that met when he imprisoned Attorney General Ayres and Colonel Scott.

"The opinion of the court is being prepared by Chief Justice Fuller and has not been filed. An outline of the court's posi-tion prepared by the chief justice was read yesterday and an able individual opinion, written by Judge Hughes, was also submitted, and a decree was entered an-nulling all of Goff's work. We earnestly trust that the court's opinion will settle the law so clearly that Judge Goff will have no excuse hereafter for interfering with the operations of state governments, as he has been doing in South Carolina and Virginia. In South Carolina he undertook to annihilate the registration laws of that state with one streke of his pen. In Virginia he has stopped the machinery of the criminal law in an important case by forbidding the commonwealth's attorney of Wyth county to prosecute one Wadiey. who is indicted there for embezziement.

"About the only excuse Judge Goff has for interfering in the Wadley case is that the affairs of the backing institution of which Wadley was an officer were wound up by a receiver appointed by the United States court. All of the facts in this Wadley case have been recently presented to the public in a letter from General James A. Walker, which was published in Tho Virginia Law Register. We indulge the hope that the chief justice's opinion in the South Carolina case will not only release South Carolina from Judge Goff's grip, but will point the way to lose his hold upon Wadley, or rather upon the officers of this commonwealth, whose duty it is found against him about a year ago.

Tennessee Editors Have a Good Time in Macon.

A YOUNG MAN KILLED BY THE CARS

He Was Coupling and Was Run Over-Two Mysterious Fishermen in Bibb County-The Constitution Thanked.

Macon, Ga., June 11 .- (Special.)-The city of Macon has been turned over today to the Tennessee editors. They have been in full charge and have been accorded delightful entertainment. They reached Macon at an early hour this morning from Brunswick, on the Georgia Southern and Florida railway. They were met at the gepot by committees representing the city council, Young Men's Business League and other organizations. Mayor Horne was chairman of the committees. There were a.so Macon ladies in attendance to receive the ladies of the Tennessee party. A brass band helped to enliven the occasion. The editors were first given an elegant breakfast at the Brown house, served in Colonel Sperry's finest and most attractive man-After the menu cigars were served, and the excursionists were then carried in cars of the Macon Consolidated street railroad, tendered free by Manager Winters, to Central City park, where an eloquent address of welcome was delivered by Mayor Henry Horne, and appropriate response made by Major Neil.

They were next taken to Crump's park, at the end of Vineville, where a rich barbecue was served. Some time was spent at Crump's, and much pleasure had in dancing in the beautiful pavilion. Long tables had been spread at Crump's and sandwiches, beer, lemonade and cigars were dispensed in abundance. Manager Winters made a happy address of welcome, and Rabbi Samfield made a fitting re-sponse. From Crump's park the party was taken to the Hotel Lanier and a findinner served at 2 o'clock. After this Messrs. Carling and Hertz gave the party a ride around the Macon and Indian Spring electric railway, which was greatly enjoyed. At 4:25 o'clock the Tennesseeans departed for home highly delighted with their trip to Macon.

Death on the Rail. Mr. Gus Dewberry, son of Mr. A. Dewberry, a young man about twenty-one years old, was killed this morning at 1 o'clock while coupling cars in the Central railway yard, in this city. Engineer Hart was drilling cars and backed onto a track where he desired to leave two cars. Gus Dewberry went between the cars while the train was moving very slowly to cut off the two cars. In the hurry of the moment, it appears, he stepped between the guide rail and main rail of the track and got his foot fastened, and could not ex-tricate it before the train struck him. The engineer heard Dewberry cry out and stopped his train at once. Dewberry was found lying face downward under the car, with one wheel of the trucks on his back, his left leg outside of the guide rail, his right leg and foot fastened between the ide rail and the main rail of the track, e leg and body being crushed and his ck broken. The verdict of the coroner's neck broken. : "We, the jury, find that Gus came to his death from being by a Central railroad car, No. 1755, while in the discharge of his duty coupling cars, on the morning of June 11,

B. Gresham, of Baltimore, $11,500.

Was He Chambers?

About two weeks ago two men, driving a horse and buggy, and having tents, applied to Mr. Jud Cherry for permission to fish on his farm below the city. He granted it. They claimed to be from Atlanta, but why they should have come to the swarps of Bibb county where fish are small and scarce, is a mystery. They also asked Mr. Cherry to recommend them a good boarding house. He did so, Their next request was for Mr. Cherry to buy them fishing tackle and they would give him haif the fish they caught. Mr. Cherry agreed to this. A few days ago Mr. Cherry agreed to this. A few days ago Mr. Cherry am the men coming on foot from his farm and he asked them why they were walking. They replied that their horse had died and they had left their buggy, harness, tents and a box of tools with a negro on the farm to take care of while they went to Florida. Mr. Cherry is still in possession of the articles and has heard nothing from the men. Today City Detective Jenkins found among the effects of the strange men an old pocketbook in which were a number of receipts for money paid to sundry parties in Cobb county, principally at Smyrna, by Joe Chambers. Among the papers is a tax receipt from the tax collector of Cobb county for taxes on property by Joe Chambers.

Newsy Notes.

Mr. Gus Danforth, a former Maconite, is said to be dying in Augusta.

The interest in the Young Men's Christian Association field day on July 10th, during the Georgia Peach carnival, continues to grow, and entries are being made from Macon, Atlanta, Montgomery, New York and other points.

Teams from the Dannenberg Company and W. A. Dooly & Co. played a match game of baseball this morning which resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 9 to 4.

FIRE AT WASHINGTON.

Many Stores Swept Away-The Loss Estimated at $30,000.

Washington, Ga., June 12, 1:30 a. m. (Special.)-Fire broke out here at 9 o'clock last night and burned eight brick stores, five wooden stores, the Episcopal church, the postoffice, a wagon and machine shop and two dwellings. The fire started in the middle of the block on the west side of the public square. Five frame stores, a dwelling and three brick stores, with their contents, on that side of the square were burned. The merchants saved little or none of their stock.

The fire went west down Main street, consuming five brick stores, the postoffice, a machine shop, a frame tenement house and the Episcopal church in the same

At 1:30 o'cleck this morning the fire is practically out. The lesses are as follows:

TERRIFIC STORM IN WORTH.

Hail Ruins the Fruit, Vegetables and Growing Crops.

Isabella, Ga., June 11.—A cloudburst and the most destructive hail storm ever known here occurred at 6 o'clock this afternoon. Crops of all kinds are totally ruined. Corn was beat into the ground; watermelons and fruit are totally ruined. No peaches are left on the trees. Houses were unroofed and blown down. The large brick store of J. S. Westberry & Bro., was unroofed and flooded. The store of Ford & Holamon suffered in the same manner.

It is impossible to give tonight anything like an estimate of the damage. So far as learned no lives were lost. The hail was from two to twelve inches deep and the heaviest ever known to fall here. Some of the stones were as large as eggs. The rain came in torrents and fell for hours.

DECLINE THE OFFER.

Bondholders of the Tybee Railroad

Want Something Better. Savannah, Ga., June 11 .- (Special.)-At a meeting of the bondholders of the Tybee railroad, or Savannah and Atlantic, as it is known, at which $165,000 of the $250,000 of bonds were represented, a resolution refusing to accept the offer of the reorganization committee, of par in second preferred income bonds to be a second lien on the property, was almost unanimously adopted. The bondholders say they now have a first lien on the property, and they see no reason why they should exchange for second lien. They say they have had an offer from another line for their property, and they propose to foreclose their mortgage and take possession of it. There are $10,000 in receiver's certificates ahead of this first

MURDERED HIS WIFE.

J. D. Hancock Dressed Carefully Before He Killed His Wife.

Perry, Ga., June 11.—(Special.)—The verdict of the coroner's jury in the Hancock case is murder. Hancock appears to have killed his wife for no cause except anger because she persisted in working. He did the deed deliberately. He dressed himself in his Sunday clothes ready for traveling before killing her. He then went out in the field and crushed her head with a noe. He escaped and has not been captured. Hancock is a large man, weighing over 200 pounds. He limps in walking and is about forty-five years old. The governor will be asked to offer a reward for his capture.

J. B. LAMAR SUICIDES

He Was Financially Embarrassed and Took Strychnine To Die.

THEN HE KEPT ON AT HIS WORK FLOYD IS NEARLY ALL ONE WAY

When the Poison Began To Act He Went to His Hotel and Died in His Wile's Presence.

Americus, Ga., June 11 .- (Special.)-Chief of Police John B. Lamar committed suicide this morning at 10 o'clock by taking strychnine, dying in about thirty minutes after swallowing the dose. The cause of his act is believed to be financial embarressment. Several judgments had been obtained against him. His two plantations vere mortgaged some time ago for longterm loans that had become in default and the judgments were about to be pressed.

Mr. Lamar made several efforts yesterday to raise money to save his property from sale, but not succeeding, it is supposed he became despondent and determined to take his life. He was to have had another interview this morning with the claimants attorneys, but just at the hour of the en gagement he took the fatal dose.

After swallowing the poison, he went on attending to his official duties, until its effect began to be felt, when he started from the courthouse at a rapid pace toward the Aller house, which is managed by his wife, passing The Times-Recorder office, where his flushed and distorted face attracted attention as he went by. A few yards further he met the son of Police Lieutenant Wheeler and sent word to Wheeler to come to the Allen house at once. Passing up the ladies' entrance he met his wife in a sitting room and exclaimed: "I want to die in peace," and fell to the floor, from which he was lifted and carried to a room in a dving condition. To the physicians he replied in response to inquiries. "I have taken strychnine. It matters not now why," and he expired a Chief Lamar was a man of splendid physique and dauntless courage. He enjoyed the confidence and esteem of everybody. He was a model officer and citizen. He was a member of the well known Lamar family of Georgia, and also a cousin of Captain John A. Cobb, of this city. Mr. Lamar was in his fortieth year. He leaves a wife and four children. His life was insured for $15,000, $5,000 in regular companies and $10,000 in fraternal orders. He had relatives here, as well as friends who would gladly have aided him had he applied to them. but he was very proud and sensitive, and failing to get money in the ordinary business channels, it is supposed he preferred to die rather than call upon his persona friends and relatives for financial help. His death is greatly deplored. The time and place of his burial will be determined early tomorrow.

SOLDIERS AT GRIFFIN.

The First Day in Camp Is Rather Quiet.

Griffin, Ga., June 11.-Although this was the opening day of the encampment for 1895 the evidences of the fact have been rather scarce, but than can easily be ac counted for in two ways. Both regiments came in much later than was expected the Third not arriving until afternoon. Again, as is usual on the first day, the streets have to be cleared, the tents put up and arranged and everything put in order generally. For these reasons principally the soldier boys have not been very much in evidence upon the streets today.

The Sixth regiment, which came in first immediately began work on the camp, and by the time the Third arrived had the streets clean and tents all up and in order. The post flag was run up at noon and for the fourth time in its history Camp Northen was formally opened with Colonel W. E. Jones, of Waynesboro, in command. The roster of the Sixth shows seven companies having about 250 men in camp. I comprises the Clinch Rifles, Oglethe Light Infantry, German Guards, Ir Guard, Washington Rifles and Burke Light Infantry. As soon as possible after getting into camp the guard details were made out, guard-mount was had and sentries posted for the first watch. The officers of the day are as follows: Captain Frye, company First Lieutenant Sancra, Company F, ar Second Lieutenant DeVaugh, Company D.

Soon after 12 o'clock the train bearing the belated Third regiment rolled into the grounds and discharged its load of hot, dusty soldiers, and they were immediately marched to their quarters, where after hasty dinner and a short visit to the bath houses they began the first work of every encampment. It took but a few hours of industrious work to put this part of the camp into equally as good shape as the

Colonel R. Usher Thomasson, of Madison, is in command of the Third this year and is assisted by an able corps of officers in Major E. H. Almand, of Conyers; Adjutant Carl Vandrolrith, of Athens, and Sergeant Major Josh Hill, of Madison. Captain James P. Nevins, of Rome, is inspector of rifle practice for the regiment.
The Third brings about 239 men into camp and its roster of companies is as follows: Madison Home Guards, Hill City Cadets, Elberton Light Infantry, Greene Rifles, Rome Light Guards, Convers Volunteers and Clarke Rifles. Camp life is almost entirely new to the men in camp this year, as in the two years that have passed since they were here last nearly all of the oil members have dropped out and others have taken their places. It is a fact that a company brings but few of its old members into camp at each successive time and in this way the officers in charge find every year that they have their work to do over again. The tours of duty this year will be shorter than usual and it will require much closer work and stricter discipline to accomplish the usual results. The discipline will be much better this year than ever before and all possible time will be given to instruction in the various details.

Among the officers who came in advance of their commands were Post Quartermaster J. T. Irvin and Regimental Commissary George H. Howard, of Augusta; Post Adjutant W. A. Wilkins, of Waynesboro, and Acting Quartermaster Whitehead. These are all of the Sixth regiment. None of the officers of the Third came in before their command. in this way the officers in charge find ev command.

Both officers and men will appreciate the work of Captain Lewis in arranging the details of the camp. Both he and his assistant, Lieutenant Hargrave, deserve the highest praise est praise.

Surgeon General Growinner came up from Macon today and is quartered out at camp. Preparations for the governor's review are already in progress and a very large crowd is expected. This is always the big day of the tour.

The crowd of visitors that the encampment invariably brings is beginning to assume is usual proportions. SANDY AND CAMPO SCRAP.

Augusta, Ga., June II.—(Special.)—The stranded Campobello opera company ar-tists gave an open air concert tonight at the exposition grand stand. This afternoon Manager Sandy Cohen and Manager Campobello had a personal difficulty and a lively exchange of blows, but both were on hand at the concert tonight and only slightly disfigured. They seemed to have admirably adjusted their difference.

GONE TO MEMPHIS.

Rome Sends a Large and Strong Delegation to the Convention.

Prominent Citizens Declare That the Remonetization of Silver Will Be Followed by an Era of Prosperity. Rome, Ga., June 11.-(Special.)-A delegation of several prominent citizens left for Memphis this afternoon to attend the convention of silver men there. That the sentiment of the people of this section is overwhelmingly in favor of free silver is evident to the most casual observer. In talking with a number of the leading men of the county this morning your correspondent was surprised at the unanimity. "It is the only remedy," said ex-Senator

Felix Corput, who is one of the solid and level-headed farmers in north Georgia, and a fine business man besides, "and there is no use trying any other expedient. We have got to prepare redemption money even before the state banking system could be utilized as a relief measure for the stringency of the times. We are compelled to have a unit of value that will meet the demands made upon it, and the single gold standard will not fill the bill. Put the silver dollar back where it was before 1873 and it will hold its own. If it depreciates gold will go with it. You can debase any metal. The gold dollar can be debased by being demonetized, just as the silver dollar was in 1873. Free silver is the only remedy for the people, and the sentiment is going to sweep this country, and when silver is restored you are going to see such an era of prosperity as this country never witnessed before." nessed before.' "I know the farmers of Floyd about as well as any man in Rome," remarked Cap-tain Gammon, "and with two exceptions 1 have not found a single gold standard man among all that I have met in the last few days. There is no question of the imperative demand for more money among the people. They have become thoroughly aroused to the necessity of meeting the emergencies with which we are threatened and they realize that the only way to do this is through the restoration of silver to a parity with gold. The people show more unanimity on this than any other question that has arisen in a long time. Take Monday night's meeting. It embodied the bes element of our citizenship and everybod could see how strong was the sentiment felt and expressed by those thinking men of business. It is going to win and it I the only solution of the great problem."

"I am an American and believe in American money for Americans," said Colone W. S. McHenry, who is one of the stanch-est silver men in Rome, "and I am tired of all this twaddle about foreign credit. Not to speak irreverently at all, foreign credit be d-d! It is just what is the trouble with us now. We have truckled to it long enough, and if the same spirit had animated our ancestors as is prevalent in cer-tain circles now there would never have been a single chest of tea thrown overboard in Boston harbor. We have been boasting of our freedom ever since 1776, and we are worse tyrannized by Great Britain today than we were before the revolution. I want to see the country freed from such abominable oppression, and the only hope for that happy state of affairs is to restore our silver coin to its legitimate movetary standard and place the credit of the country both at home and abroad above reproach. I want to se these old red hills of Georgia blossom like the rose and the only way is through the restoration of silver.'

A Hard Fight Expected in Spalding

Over Prohobition. Griffin, Ga., June 11.—(Special.)—The Spalding County Ant Problem League was organized last night, and steps were spaiding consistent and steps were taken for the beginning of a very declare fight upon the issue. Ordinary Himmon I has ordered an election to be held on July 15th to decide if Spalding is to be wet or dry, and the meeting last night was the first move of any consequence on the side of the anti-prohibitionists. Both sides are preparing to make a strong fight, each one realizing that the action in this instance will virtually settle the question for good, so far as Spalding is concerned. At the opening there were about fifty citizens present, representing both sides, but when the object of the meeting was announced as the formation of an anti-prohibition league, some ten or fifteen prohibs withdrew, leaving the meeting unanimous. drew, leaving the meeting unanim H. C. Burr, president of the City National bank, was elected president of the league, with John B. Mills secretary, J. G. Rhea treasurer and Dr. J. M. Kelly vice president. Steel Rails To Be Advanced. Philadelphia, Pa., June 11.-The bulletin of the American Iron and Steel Association, the organization of the iron and steel manufacturers of this country, in its issue to day says that an advance will soon be made in the price of steel rails, Notwithstanding the fact that in 1894 there was a great decline in the prices of all other kinds of iron and steel, Bessemer steel rails of standard weights remained at $24 per ton throughout the entire year. Bessemer pig iron, steel billets, finished bars, etc. fell in price during the year from $1 to $5 per ton, but steel rails remained at the same figure regardless of the decline in other prices. In January of the present year the price of rails was reduced $2 per ton, or from $24 to $22, and the latter figure has ruled since the first of the year. The old price of $24 will, however, in all probability, be restored at an early day.

Special mention should be made of the speeches of Messrs. Bryan, Covington and Hines. After the speaking by the boys Hon. I. E. Shumate, of Dalton, spoke. He concluded by delivering the sophomore and Junior oratory medals. His speech was appropriate to the occasion and was spiced with frequent humorous hits. The first sophomore declamation medal was awarded sophomore declamation medal was awarded to Mr. T. C. Hoyle, Dawson; the second, to Mr. E. M. Banks, Grantville, The junior medal was won by W. O. a large audience on the subject of "Idealism and Realism." The occasion was the annual address before the two literary societies. It was a masterful production, and the audience was enthusiastic in its

Rev. Mr. Lee's speech was as follows: All thinkers, from Plato to Bernard Bossanquet and from Epicurus to Heroert Spencer, may be put down either as idealists or as realists. These terms are of sufficient breadth. breadth and scope to accommodate the only two great schools of thought that have existed in the world. Idealism and realism are philosophic terms, and because of this are generally supposed to be out of relation to ordinary men and women. It has been the custom to think of the idealists has been the custom to think of the idealists and the realists as limited classes of mortals who had nothing whatever in common with tolling, suffering, worky day people. These terms relate to philosophers and they have been esteemed as belonging more to cloudland than to the earth. But idealism and realism are not like fine linen and purple suits of clothes that favored people may put off or take on at will. Whether a man will or not he is an idealist or a realist. He is so by the fact of his being a man. And for a person to declare himself as neither the one nor the other is equivalent to his disavowing his connection with the human race. Humanity, past, present and the same mind, and this mind as parcelled out in the separate members of the world, and that which is back of the world, and that which is back of the world, and that which is back of the world, either idealistic or realistic. To get away from one's brains. Every single mental movement in the mind of the philosopher under the shade of the trees of the Acidemy, from the beginning until now, has been either idealistic or tealistic. The Latin poet said: "I am human and nothing human is alien from me." So I choose to talk of "idealism and Realism" to day because of my desire to be entirely practical. Choosing for my theme two terms so thoroughly human, I knew I would be forced to keep to lines of thought, not out of reach nor out of touch with the human interests of my autience. The privation of teachers like Plato the Athense of the philosopher and the product of doine action; it was only the argument of the common taste of the common to calletic. The Latin poet said: "I am her man and nothing human is alien from the said of t mortals here below. Faith is the vapor of emotion; prayer is a useless expenditure of time that might be spent in useful work, and religion is a disease engendered by superstition and fear. Mrs. Elizabeth Bar-rett Browning had the realists in her inind when she wrote:

"The age culls simples
With a broad clown's back turned broadly to the glory of the stars;
We are God's by our own reckoning, and may well shut up the temples
And wield on, amid the incense—steam, the thunder of our cars.

'For we throw out acclamations of self-thanking, self-admiring.
With, for every mile, run faster, 'Oh the wondrous wondrous age!'
Little thinking if we work our souls as nobly as our iron,
Or if angels will commend us at the goal of our pilgrimage.

Why, what is this patient entrance into nature's deep resources

But the child's most gradual learning to walk upright without bane?

When we drive out from the clouds of steam majestical white horses Are we greater than the first men who led black ones by the mane?

"If we trod the deeps of ocean, if we struck the stars in rising, If we wrapped the globe intensely with one hot electric breath, 'Twee but power within our tether; no new sp.rit-power comprising;
And in life we were not greater men, nor bolder men in death."

The realists call for facts; they want n theories, no speculation. They want medi-cine and not any theory of medicine, not recognizing the important truth that medi-cine prescribed without reference to some rational theory is as likely to kill as to cure. They want justice and no theory of justice, but how can the judge administer justice if there is in his mind no standard by which he determines justice? They want a house and no theory of a house; but what sort of a house can you get, if the building material does not take the form of a theory or plan? The savages are the only people who deal squarely and at first hand with facts without any theory that account for and accommodates the facts. The realist looks at the thing, so he thinks, and not at any rational conception by which it is taken and give place in the general order of things. He looks at the water, and not at the buckets that contain it or at the banks between which it flows. Let us test the value of these two working hypotheses. Which has been the more fertile of results? By the use of which one has the human mind been able to take hold of most it has sought to reach? The value of any working hypothesis is to be determined by knowing how much it will lead the mind to, and by how much it will lead the mind to apprehend and lift. No two theories in the whole domain of thought are more easy to estimate. They have been at work in all ages, and civilization is before us reaching back for thousands of years. What contribution have the idealists made to civilization, and what contribution have the realists made to it? As a direct test of the value of these two principles we have pernaps not in the whole range of civilization a more definite and clear cut illustration than is to be found in Greece. Between the years 500 and 300. B. C. there lived in Greece twenty-eight men whose influence grows with the passing years. As statesmen there were Miltiades, Leonidas, Themistocles, Aristides, Cimon. fluence the minds of our people since the war.

All that is great and eternal in the republic has been the outgrowth of idealism. The South Carolina of John C. Cathoun is an ideal commonwealth, and it will be known when the South Carolina of rice and cotten shall have been forgotten. No one can tell what the future of the Kentucky of blue grass and fine horses and race tracks is to be, but the ideal there 2,000 years before. Sir Isaac Newton invented his binomial theorem and discovered the laws of gravitation. William Harvey, the distinguished English physician, discovered the creulation of the blood and gave to the world some of the most scholarly and eloquent treatises in the history of medicine: The compass was employed for purposes of navigation. Guttenburg invented the art of modern Boyle laid the foundations of modern chemistry. Dr. Gilbert, of Colchester, England, perhaps began the investigations which led to the knowledge of electricity in its application to the uses of modern life. The marquis of Worcester applied stam to the performance of useful work and described it in his "Century of Useful Inventions," in 1868. We call ours the advanced age and the great age, but nearly every discovery and invention which has had to do with the making of our age was the product of the time between the close of the thirteenth century and the beginning of the eighteenth. This is true of even the practical things, while in the department of the line arts it is true in a much wider and deeper sense. It was during the fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth centuries that the Cologne cathedral, the finest specimen of Gothic architecure ever conceived and ever built, along when the product of the translation of the German philosophers. The cathedral at Cologne was but the translation of Dante's poem into stone. The sight of it lifts the mind at once into the presence of the great and the eternal. It is an argument in favor of God and immortality that no man with depth of nature can resist. I spent two hours in its presence one bright moonlight night, and nature can resist. I spent two hours in its presence one bright moonlight night, and cathedral at Milan, after St. Peter's at Rome, the largest church in Itaily. Witn its fifty-two piers, its one hundred pinna cles, its forty-four hundred statues; with its fretwork, carving and statuary, it eclipses in some respects all other churches in the world. In 1450 was laid the foundations of St. Peter's at Rome, of which Gibbon said: "It is the most glorious structure ever applied to the use of religion." To name the great cathedrals and minsters that were built during this period would be to mention every famous church in Europe. ever applied to the use of religion. To name the great cathedrals and minsters that were built during this period would be to mention every famous church in Europe. Not only were the great cathedrals built, but the famous and influential universities of Europe were established during the same period. It was the golden age of painting. In this respect it stands out un paralleled in the history of art. In this period flourished the Florentine school, with Giotto, Taddeo Gaddl, Andrea di Cione, Paolo Uccelli, Piero della Francesca, Masolino da Panicale, Tomasso Guidi, Giovanni and Fra Filippo Lippi. There was the Paduan school with its Marco Zoppo and Andrea Maniegua. There was the Venetian school with its Antonello da Mess. na and Gievanni Bellini. There was the Umbrian school with its Antonello da Mess. na and Ferugino. There was the latter Florentine school with its Bartolommeo and Mariotto Albertinelli, besides the five great masters of Italy, Leerardo da Vinci, Michel Angelo, Raphael, Titian and Correggio. Then, in Germany, in Holland, in Frence, and in Spain, there lived during the same period men as famous as those of Italy. In poetry Shakespeare and Milton compensated England for what sne lacked in painting. Toward the close of the seventeenth century the idealism of Dante and Descartes began to give place in England and France to the realism of John Locke. A revival of the sensationalism of piccurs was setting in. The people again wanted facts. They vanted something practical and real. Locke contended that the mind was like a plece of blank paper ready to be written upon by the facts of the entiside world.

Knowledge was only the sum of sensations which the outside world made in rassing, thus making matter the cause of knowledge. The teacher in England who the outside world. There was nothing in the mind but what came to it from the outside world.

Knowledge was only the sum of sensatiors which the outside world made in cassing, thus making matter the cause of knowledge. The teacher in England who accepted and taught the doctrine of Locke during the eignteenth century was David Hume. It was the same old cry. Let us come back to facts, for we can know nothing else. We cannot know such a thing as cause, for we can have no sensation of cause. We cannot know whether there is any such thing as the soul, for we can have no sensation of cause. We cannot know whether there is any such things as the soul, for we can have no sensation of cause. We cannot know whether there is any such things as the soul, for we can have no sensation of cause and things universal are but fain images that have no basis in fact. This doctrine spread over England and France and the outcome we all know. In England during this century the four Ceorges occupied the throne. Akenside, Collins, Pope and Young were the poets; preachers of the Laurence Sterne type were in the pulpit. Adam Smith was writing political economy; Shakespeare and Milton were at a discount. In France Voltaire and Rousseau and the encyclopedists were the ruling spirits in the d-pariment of letters. Upon the throne were the Louis's, from Louis XIV to Lou's XVII, fit companions to the Georges in England. Pater, Lancret, Boucher, Van Loo and Ondry were the painters. Everything in this century was upon a low level. Men no longer lived under an infinite sky. Their ideals were eartily, manners became corrupt. It is the most barren age of modern times, One' can distinguish as he walks through the great art galleries of Europe when the age of idealism closed and when the age of realism set in.

Hume's teachings, however, not only spread throughout England and France great art galleries of Europe when the age of idealism closed and when the age of realism set in.

Hume's teachings, however, not only spread throughout Eagland and France, but were carried also to Germany. So toward the close of this century a revival of idealism began in Germany. The work of Hume had fallen into the hands of Immanuel Kant and aroused him from the philosophic siumber. The publication of his "Critique of Pure Reason" called attention again to the unseen principles back of what appears. The mind was not like a piece of blank paper; the mind was as spontaneous, creative agent, and while the outside world furnished the material of knowledge the mind furnished the form and was the active principle that organized knowledge. See in Germany the character of the men idealism created. Goethe and Schiller were the poe's. Kant and Fichte and Schiller were the pulptit. Beethoven and Mendelssohn were composing music. Froebel was teaching idealism in the schools and laying the foundation of the kinderenter and the great men of Greece produced between the years of 500 and 300 B. C., there had been no period so directly fertile of great men as the time between Kant and Hegel in Germany. The practical order was also remarkable. The idea of German unity was born. Unity was the great philosophic watchword of the time. In Von Molike and Bismarck their words took practical form. The German empire, as we know it, was created, and under the inspiration of the movement the cathedral at Cologne was completed.

This idealistic movement passed through Coleridge to England. It created Carlyle Cologne was completed.

This idealistic movement passed through Coleridge to England. It created Carlyle and Ruskin in literature, Wordsworth, Tennyson and Browning in poetry. It gave to the pulpit Kingsley and Maurice and Robertson. It came to America and created Emerson and Longfellow and the New England school of writers. In France it made possible Victor-Hugo and the republic.

Parallel with the idealistic movement in England there was also the realistic, which was but the continuation of that started by John Locke and continued through Hume to James Mill. It continued to influence English thought through John Stuart Mill and Herbert Spencer and Professor Clifford. But realism was not strong enough to dominate the English mind, and now at the close of the century we see in England realism completely discomfited. Even Mr. Spencer and Professor Huxley, in so far as Mr. Huxley has attempted the role of the philosopher, are back numbers before their death. George John Romanes, the most influential writer and leader of realism among the younger generation. before their death. George John Romanes, the most influential writer and leader of realism among the younger generation, gave it up before his death last year. He has left on record a reply to his own work on "Thism." by Physicus, Kidds. "Social Evolution" is another work that shows the utter recoil of the English mind from the realism of Mill and Spencer. The triumph of realism in America has been more complete during the nineteenth century than in England. In England it has been kept within bounds by the Cairds at Glasgow: by Wallace and Farbairn at Oxford, and by Flint and J. Hutchison Stirling at Edinburgh. In America thas not been met by such masters. It has encountered opposition here, but this opposition has not been on philosophic, but on the grounds of dogmatic theology. Our people have failed to see that the way to meet realism is on the grounds of philosophical idealism. Because of this the triumph of realism in America has been almost complete. Especially is this true in the north and west. In the south this has not been true to the same degree. The idealism preached by our southern statesmen in the better days of the republic has continued more or less to Influence the minds of our people since the war.

ergy that is putting itself into one in Atlanta.

The tendency of realism is to let down the standards. There is no ideal world to which it is necessary to adjust one's self. The only world is the outward and tangible one upon which we stand. Its motto is to take care of yourself in the world you see, and don't worry yourself about any world you don't see. Beyond what you see and touch there is nothing. This doctrine has had great influence in America since the war. Its existence is advertised in the low class of fiction sold from our news stands. The dealers sell perhaps ten books that ought not to be read to where they sell one that ought. The existence of widespread realism is seen in the lax notions the people have of the marriage bond, and in the easy conditions upon which divorce can be procured. It is seen in the degraded level reached by the stage and the wretched so-called living pictures which filiuminate the billboards advertising the plays. One Pleasant A. Stovall, of Savannah. during the past , winter he shad witnessed but two performances in which there were not allusions and characters that would not have been tolerated twenty years ago. He said the "Black Crook" as originally played would now be eminently conservative and time. Realism is seen further in the mad rush for money, characteristic of the time. There are signs, however, that we are upon the eve of a change for the tetter. More emphasis is being placed upon philosophy in our colleges and philosophy, too, based upon the principles of idealism. In the University of Missouri Professor Thilly is an idealist and the whole course of philosophy at Harvard. Also true of the Harvard professors and of the course of philosophy at Harvard. Also true of the Boston university and the University of Michigam. Our hope is in the schools and the colleges. Realish unchecked and uncorrected leads to agnosticism in philosophy. It did that under Herbert Spencer in our day. It leads to scheming and time serving in politics, to reliance upon form in religion, to enslavement to the material in commerce, to weakness and corruption in literature and art and to Sullivan and Corbett in sport. The circumference of the world of realism is twenty-five thousand miles; the world of idealism is unlimited in extent. Men, in so far as they are animal, can get along on the real world, but in so far as they are mental and spiritual they demand a world up to the style of their facultles and that world is illimitable and ideal. honor, Miss Sarah Glenn McBride, of Atlanta, 98.29.

Thirty-A BIG BUSINESS SCHOOL

Up in the Beautiful "Grand" Building on Peachtree Street.

BOOKKEEPING, SHORTHAND, TELEGRAPHY

Being Taught to 225 Young Men and Women-Others Will Enter This and Next Week.

Any good thing conducted on a great scale takes with the people. That is the reason why the Southern Shorthand and Business university in the magnificent Grand building is the largest patronized business school south of Mason and Dixon's line. It is because the managers have put $16,990 in improvements into their institution in the last two years. It is the greatest business school in the south, because its courses of instruction are practical, thorough and adequate to all business regirements. The "Southern" is the leading business school, because it is so recognized and recommended by the last five governors of Georgia, the last six mayors of Atlanta, the public schools of Atlanta, the state treasurer, the state librarian, the railread officials and banks, and all of the prominent business men and manufacturing concerns of Atlanta.

The Southern Business university has educated and placed in business over six thousand people and has now an attendance of 225 students. If those contemplating a course in business or shorthand will go up to the Grand and look through this great school, they will at once dismiss the idea of going north for their education.

On June 23d and 24th the Southern railway will sell round trip tickets from Atlanta to Brunswick and return for $8.33. Tickets good to return until July 8th. This will be the chance for a cheap trip to Cumberland and St. Simon's. The Southern railway is the direct line to Brunswick.

A-SLAVE FROM BOYHOOD

From The Red Wing, Minn. Republican.
"I am now twenty-four years old," said Edwin Swanson, of White Rock, Goodhuo county, Minnesota, to a Republican representative, "and as you can see, I am not very large of stature. When I was cleven years old I became afflicted with a sickness which baffled the skill and knowledge of the physician. I was not taken sudness which baffled the skill and knowledge of the physician. I was not taken suddenly ill, but on the contrary I can hardly state the exact time when it began. The first symptoms were pains in my back and restless nights. The disease did not trouble me much at first, but it seemed to have settled in my body to stay and my have settled in my body to stay and my bitter experience during the last thirteen years proved that to be the case. I was, of years proved that to be the case. I was, of course, a child and never dreamed of the suffering in store for me. I complained to my parents and they concluded that in time I would outgrow my trouble, but when they heard me groaning during my sleep they became thoroughly alarmed. I grew rapidly worse and was soon unable to move about and finally became confined continually to my bed. The best doctors that could be had were consulted, but did nothing for me. I tried various kinds of extensively advertised patent mcdicines with but the same result.

"For twelve long years I was thus a sufferer in constant agony without respite, abcesses formed on my body in rapid succession and the world indeed looked very dark to me. About this time when all hope was gone and nothing seemed left but to resign myself to my most bitter fate my attention was called to Dr. Williams's Pink Pills for Pale People. Like a drowning man grasping at a straw, in sheer desperation I concluded to make one purse, a child and never dreamed of the

"I bought a box of the pills and they seemed to do me good. I felt encouraged and continued their use. After taking six boxes I was up and able to walk around the house. I have not felt so well for thirteen years as during the past year. Only one year have I taken Dr. Williams's Pink Pills and I am able now to do chores and attend to light duties.
"Do I hesitate to let you publish what I have said? No. Why should I? It is the truth and I am only too glad to let other sufferers know my experience. It may help those whose cup of misery is as full today as mine was in the past."

"The clerks are the most down-trodden people in the world. It's now 7:30 o'clock, and I'm just out of the store. I had an engagement to play a game of tennis with some eastside belles at 6 o'clock.

"Sympathize with me, but never congratulate me."

This story is told of a young man of this city who is engaged.

He became fascinated with a fair young creature who shot athwart the local horizon a few weeks ago and played havoc with the hearts of many local beaux. She with the hearts of many local scatter was a dear creature with fine form and faultless features. The engaged young man made love to her as openly as he might in public, and in private he said all the sweet things to her that he could call to

"Certainly," she said; "give me one of yours and I'll give you a half-dozen of mine. I have a lovely series."

He promised, but regularly failed to deliver his picture. Finally, the matter run on until the eve of her departure, and she suggested that he be at the train to see her off the next day, and have his picture with him. The young man was in a sad dilemma. He didn't want to disappoint the fair charmer, nor did he wish her to go away with his picture, lest some misunderstanding might arise in other The train was about to pull out when the young man chanced to think of his promise. He rushed into the ticket office on some pretext and borrowed a neat piece of cardboard. This he cut out the regula-tion size and fitted it in a yellow envelope that looked as if it had just come from the

And she handed him a half-dozen of hers lovely dreams every one of them.

The next moment the train was gone.

The young man carried his treasures

A few days later he received a letter from the young lady, and she referred to the incident. "I suppose that's what you call the flim-flam," she said.

There is an expert young stenographer in town who was called in by one of the leading ministers of the city. The minis-ter wished to try dictating a sermon, and started off with the text: "Paul planteth, Apollos watereth, but God giveth the increase." Now, the young man knew a good deal more about stenography than he did about the holy writ. He had never heard of Apollos, but he had heard of Apollinaris so when he presented a neatly copied MS. to the reverend gentleman, what was the latter's astonishment to observe the remarkable statement that Paul planteth

"I didn't say anything about Apollinaris water," he cried. "I don't know any-thing about Apolli-naris water. I said 'Apollos watereth.' "

"Well," said the young man, "I never heard of Apollos. I Paul should be talk-ing about Apollinaris thought it funny that water, because I didn't know they used it in those days.

But I didn't want to dispute the scriptures, so I put it down like I thought you said it." Then followed mutual explanations. The young man explained that Apollinaris water was a mild beverage much fancied by women and children, and never associated with anything stronger, and the preacher disabused the young man's mind of the impression that the apostle had been engaged in the somewhat expensions task of irrigating the holy land w Apollinaris water at 40 cents a quart. At last account, the young man had borrowed a testament and was posting himself on biblical characters, while the minister is "A little," responded the New Yorker. "Well, is it possible that you—that you— could you—do you think—well you know af-ter you left yesterday I missed my mail the New Yorker, with a laugh, "Well that's entirely possible and extremely probable. I'll just look in my grip and see. I'do such things—I'm so busy."

He threw open his grip, and there packed away with his other belongings, were the Atlanta man's letters. "There you are," said the New Yorker,

"I'm awfully glad you came down. I would have felt sure that I was a mail robber if I bad kept those letters and found them when I got to New York. I wish we had time to get a drink.

He waved the Atlanta man a smiling adieu from the rear of the vestibule.

AROUND THE CITY HOTELS.

"Who is your man for president next time?"
[This was the question several wellknown republicans of Georgia who chanced to be around the Atlanta hotels yesterday were discussing. This is the way

'Uncle Billie" Bowers, the only man in Georgia who voted for Abraham Lincoln for president in the stirring days, said he was in favor of Bob Lincoln for president and H. Clay Evans, of Tennessee, for vice president on the republican ticket.

Colonel Darnell, of Pickens, wanted to

Mr. Ed Copeland, the banker of Greenes-boro, is at the Aragon.

Dr. J. L. Turner, Rev. J. D. Turner and Colonel S. W. Peek, prominent citizens of Hartwell, are at the Marion.

"I have been looking over this city today very closely," remarked Mr. Howard El-liott, general freight agent for the southern division of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, who has come to Atlanta to es-tablish a branch office of this great system, "and I tell you there are few cities in the country that can show half the life to the quare inch as does Atlanta. When I was own here a few months ago I came to the onclusion that Atlanta was not only the conclusion that Atlanta was not only the coming city of this region of country, but already was the town so far as business is concerned, and I am now convinced that I was right. I do not speak slightingly of any other city in the south, for they are all showing that they have been built on rock-bottom foundations of healthful business, but I think I can, with candor and fairness, declare that Atlanta is fast becoming the wasterned southern traffic and southern. great center of southern traffic and southern business."

"Now here is a fair sample of the result of good seasons for fruit growing," said Mr. J. B. Williams, of Vineville, near Maon, yesterday, as he held up a huge bunch of plums from his vineyard and truck farm on the outskirts of Macon. The limb had been cut just as it hung from the tree. been cut just as it hung from the tree and was fairly covered with huge plums of the finest variety. "The trees on my place are all filled and loaded down with just such fruit as this," continued Mr. Wilsuch fruit as this," continued Mr. Williams, "and I have never in my life seen such favorable seasons. If there is no backset of any kind this year the fruit crop in central and southern Georgia is just going to be beyond the harvest, that's ail about

FOR THE WOMAN'S BOARD.

A Barbecue Will Be Given Today at Mrs. Hemphill's Summer Home. A real old-fashioned Georgia barbecue will be given by the ladies of the woman's bear of the exposition at 12 o'clock today. It will be served at beautiful "Woodhaven," the elegant summer nome of Mrs W. A. Hemphill, on Ponce de Leon circle, and the ladies of the board have made extensive preparations for the occasion. The fuicy viands will be served on tables scattered about the lovely lawn, and beneath the cool shade of the trees. The ladies have gone to work energetically and it will be a most enjoyable affair. Atlanta women have never been known to fail in any enterprise that they have undertaken, and the barbecue this morning promises to surpass anything of the kind that has ever been given.

Every detail has been arranged and nothing has been left undone that would in any way add to the pleasure of the occasion. They have secured the service of experts, who have had much experience in the work of preparing the tempting viands, and they will themselves personally superintend the work of preparation. It will no doubt be largely attended and many will go out on the cars to spend a pleasant hour or two. The cars run direct to the place and business men will attend in large numbers. The elegant repast is of itself worth twice the time taken in making the trip, and the fact that it is given for the benefit of the exposition will be met with liberal response from all. There is something about a barbecue that is not to be resisted, and the delicious odor of the broiling meat has charms that the average person cannot withstand. A real old-fashioned Georgia barbecue can't be surpassed and there is nothing so enjoyable as to sit in the cool shade of the trees and partake of the delicious meat as it is taken mittee of ladies, who will themselves be waitresses and will serve the smoking viands to the guests. The lawn will be dot-ted with comfortable rustic chairs and fanned by the cool breezes—the heat and din of the city will be forgotten.

The following ladies have the matter in charge and they will see to it that every one who attends will have a most enjoyable time: Mrs. I. S. Mitchell, Mrs. Anthony Murphy, Mrs. Paul Romare, Mrs. S. W. Goode, Mrs. George May, Mrs. C. E. Boynton, Mrs. George Hillyer, Mrs. Joseph Morgan, Mrs. A. L. Wooten, Mrs. Nourse, Mrs. Collins, Dr. Mary Hicks, Mrs. Stanhope Sams, Mrs. Emanuel Rich, Mrs. Pap-penheimer, Mrs. Heiman, Miss Nellie Court-ney, Miss Eva Prather, Miss Field, Mrs. J. P. will be applied to the woman's board and the amount received will be of great ser-vice to the ladies interested in the welfare of the exposition.

WHY ISH SHOT CHAPPEL. He Told a Falsehood To Save His Wife's Name.

Omaha, Neb., Jpue 11.—The Ish-Chappel tragedy of last night turns out to be a murder by James C. Ish, because he believed his wife false. On Chappel's body were found several letters alleged to be from Mrs. Ish, showing her to be in love with Chappel. She denounces these letters as forgeries. Ish was arrested yesterday for murder.

Seen by a representative of the United Press, Ish was told that people believed that he did the deed. He asked: "Can they blasse me for doing it? I did not know that me mife was more to me."

not know that my wife was untrue to me until Saturday."
"Did you send the letter to Chappel which brought him to your house, or did you find him in a compromising position with your wife?"

"I did not know of any letter. I did not send any letter to him and no one can blame me for what I did. I am not to blame because she was untrue to me. No, I do not want to change the story which was printed this morning just yet. One story is enough for the present, but I do not believe there is a jury in the world which would convict me when the facts become known. I told the story published to save her reputation." Briefly as Ish related it, the story of the crime is this: When Chappel came to his house at the remarkable time he did, ostensibly to fix the sewing machine, 1sh satisfied that he had come to meet Mrs. 1sh criminally. Afterwards, when Ish left the room to go down stairs, he went only part of the way, returning immediately to if Chappel would attempt familiarity with the woman. Looking into the room, he having armed himself with his revolver, he saw the man apparently attempting to kiss Mrs. Ish, they being in one another's em-brace. He fired, the shot taking effect in brace. He fired, the shot taking ence. the back of Chappel's head. In falling Chappel attempted to use his own revolver, but the shots went wild. Ish continued firing bullets into Chappel's body. Mrs. Ish ran out to the kitchen and excitedly told the first comer that she had killed the man for assaulting her, and on her prayer to save her name, Ish corroborated her story.

Ish firmly denies that he had any idea that Chappel was coming to see his wife Sunday night, or that there was any kind of a conspiracy.

KIPLING ONCE A TRAMP.

A Story Which the Famous Author Told of a California Experience.

From The New York Herald.
Rudyard Kipling, during his first visit to California, was the hero of a tale which he has never written. I can vouch for the truth of the adventure, for it was told me by Kipling himself.

He found himself, in lower California miless. How that happened he did not tell me, but he dwelt with emphasis on the fact of his entire poverty. In what manner to gain relief he did not know. Whether or not he was ashamed to beg the sequel will snow, but he certainly did not dig. While he ruminated on his misfortunes and schemed for a remedy he came upon a fellow sufferer. This second victim was of venerable years, uncouth and wretched in appearance, and altogether without money. loves company, and Kipling associated himself with the stranger. They plan-ned together and finally determined to tramp to San Francisco, where Kipling had

They started on foot to travel the 200 miles, slept in barns or in the open fields beneath a friendly hedge. They murmured indistinct Spanish at greasers' doors, seeking a crust of bread. They pilfered from friendly fruit trees, they did without all the luxuries of life and some of the supposed necessities. Their one luxury was scenery. Kipling descanted on the generally obnox lous nature of their undertaking and up braided the evil necessity that had convert ed him into a tramp. He dwelt at length on the painful contrast afforded by his present position to the luxuries with which he had been surrounded in other and hap pier hours. He described the stealthy sway of the howdah as the elephant bore him through the jungle and he told of the lurching ricochet of the camel's hump, But his companion said never a word of complaint. He accepted stolidly all the vicissitudes of their course. He bowed humbly when cursed in Spanish patois of a lordly greaser. He suffered without rebuke the gibes of naugh ty urchins. He contemplated without re mark the open advance of his toes from out his boots. So meek, so silent, so phlegmatic was his manner that Kipling came to look upon him with something of centempt, as one who, unknowing any ter fortune, humbly accepted the w with indifference. However, he was some one to talk to, and for that reason Kipling loved him just then.

The twain had no especially thrilling adventures. On one occasion the ancient tramp fell into a hole filled with mud and water Kipling watched him for a few minutes and then pulled him out, and the victim said "Thank you," which was a long speech for him. His fragments of trousers were hopelessly fouled, and to Kipling's aston shment he took them off, Kipling's emo tions became amazement, mixed with admi ration, when he saw his companion class in a sound pair, which he had worn conceal ed. This afforded Kipling ground for reflection. Had the other inherited that sec ond pair of trousers? No. Certain qualities in their appearance forbade ascribing to them great antiquity. He had stolen them? Dismal thought! What if he, Kipling, should be robbed!

Once Kipling complained that he was aving a great deal of trouble with his His sententious companion replied: You would have a great deal more trouble

Finally the tramps reached San Francis co. Kipling hailed it as his Mecca. His companion made no comments. Kipling wished to seek friends at once, but he was embarrassed by his companion. He hardly wished to present him to others and he not suddenly desert him. So Kipling red of him his destination. "The wharf." was the answer. As that was but a little out of Kipling's way, he accompanied his fellow traveler to satisfy his conscience

Arriving at the wharf, they found a very neat boat waiting and half a dozen sailor lounging about, who sprang up and saluted respectfully at sight of the ancient tramp, Kipling was astounded, nor was his emo tion lessened when his taciturn and tat-tered wanderer stepped into the boat, seat ed himself, nodded to Kipling, and said,

"Shove off."
The men bent to their oars, the boat sped

Following their usual custom, Drs. Copeland and Howald desire to announce the advent of the present favorable season. Now is undoubtedly the time to treat catarrh. Now we have nature to assist us in the treatment instead of retarding it. A month of treatment now is worth more than two months during the cold season. In fact, in some aggravated cases, it is simply impossible to effect a cure during the winter months, and in these instances patients have been advised to delay treatment until summer.

Neglected catarrh from winter colds soor leads to consumption, and consumption is the cause of 25 per cent of all deaths. This demands serious consideration.

swiftly away from the gaping Kipling, who stood and stared at it until it reached a re-markably handsome yacht that lay at anor in the harbor and there remained. Kipling shook himself, like Sampson of old, and sought his friends, from whom he learned that he had made his impecunious journey alongside of a man whose private yacht is one of the most luxurious ever seen in the bay, but who enjoys an occasional walking tour. Kipling does not.

A Deserved Tribute.

Miss Coard in Pittsburg Press.
In referring to Miss Lollie Belle Wylie one scarcely knows which to speak of first, her writings or of her own charming self, but perhaps it is in her works that we may best read her delightful personality. Her work has only been of eight years' duration research. Her work has only been of eight years' duration, yet within that time she has become one of the most widely known journalists and special writers in the south. Up to that time Mrs. Wylie, like many guarded, sheltered women, had scarcely thought for herself, she declares, but at the death of her husband the dormant strength in her character burst forth like the bloom of a beautiful plant and she has stope been a beautiful plant, and she has since been the support of her two lovely little girls through her writing for magazines, newspapers and her compositions of music. She edited and owned, by her own exertions, a successful society journal in Atlanta and for four years was connected with The Atlanta Journal. Mrs. Wylie's writings have been varied and always char-acterized by a delicacy of finish and a quality of sympathetic responsiveness to all that is highest and purest in life; an outcome of heart that is always sensitively alive to the tender, delicate features of human life and character, a nature finely attuned to sentiment. This is attested to not only by the bright gems contributed to magazines and newspapers, many of which have been translated and published which have been translated and published in foreign papers, but by her volume of poems, "Legend of the Cherokee Rose," also her novel and volume of short sketches, "Some Women's Hearts." Likewise has this clever woman made a reputation among musicians as a song writer. Mrs. Wylie's parents were from old and distinguished South Carolina families, while her fathersinglays is one of the wealthing. er father-in-law is one of the wealthiest and most influential bankers of Atlanta est and most innuential bankers of Atlanta and the yice president of the board of managers of the exposition. It should have been added above that Mrs. Wylle has for nearly a year filled the place of her brother, who has been ill, as commissioner of public works in Atlanta. This shows something of the wonderfully varied abilof public works in Atlanta. This shows omething of the wonderfully varied abilities of the woman, and the phenomena capacity for work, for not a day has her literary work been halted by the under-taking of the other.

AT THE CAPITOL.

Governor Atkinson gave up his trip to Dahlonega to the agricultural college commencement. He expected to be there today. He will probably remain in the city until Friday, when he goes to Griffin to review the soldiers.

He will be accompanied by only three members of his staff whose homes are represented by the military now in encamp-ment. He will notify those members whom he expects to accompany him by letter. He spent the day in attending to the routine duties of his office. He did not take up the Beresford case and will not do so again this week. He will wait a few days until every fact in the case has been laid before him, so that the case will not have to be reopened after a decision is reached. The governor did not take action in any of the cases pending before him.

Principal Keeper of the Penifentiary Turner yesterday received the details of the death of Doc Sims, a negro convict, who died of sunstroke last week in Colonel Jim Smith's convict camp in Oglethorpe county. Nuts for Cuckoos and Goldbugs.

One of the fundamental contentions of the goldbugs and cuckoos is that the 'quantity of primary money in circula tion and available for use has no influence on prices. They contend that whether the quantity is large or small it can have no effect on prices. They are driven to this by the situation. They know that there is not more than three or four hundred millions of gold available for use in the United States, and if they once admit that prices are affected by the quantity of primary money available, they give their whole case away. Consequently those among them that understand the importance of the matter have no hesitation in declaring in the face of all authority and experience, that the quantity of primary money available for business purposes bears no important relation to prices or to the prosperity of the people.

Now, this ridiculous assumption would attract less attention if they would leave it to rest quietly in its virgin absurdity. But they are not content with this. They are compelled, in order to meet the varying emergencies of the discussion to fly in the face of their own ridiculous theory and thus make it more ridiculous than ever. Thus we see some of the cuckoos and postmaster organs declaring that the free coinage of silver would drive gold out of circulation, and result in a contraction of the currency, a further shrinkage in values and a still greater fall in prices. On the other hand, some who are jusas rampant in favor of the single gold standard declare that free coinage will flood the country with silver, inflate the currency, and give us a high range of prices and a volume of depreciated money. The reader will have no difficulty in seeing the point. The very men who contend that the small quantity of gold has not lowered prices and values, have no hesitation in giving themselves the lie by declaring that a contraction of the volume of primary money will lower values and prices, and that an inflation of the currency will cause them to rise.

In other words, they say in one breath that the quantity of primary money has nothing to do with prices and in another that the volume of primary money has the most important bearing on prices and values. We presume that these agents of the money power imagine that the public takes no note of the ridiculous position in which they place themselves in their efforts to deceive and delude, but we have warrant for saying that the public keeping a very watchful eye on their antics

Another deep ditch in which the cuckoos fall and flounder is that which lies between the profits of the silver miners and the "depreciated" dollar that silver will give the people according to the gospel of the goldbugs. Deep as this ditch is the cuckoos fall in it and lie there wallowing with the greatest cheerfulness. They say that the free coinage of silver will double the profits of the silver miners by enabling them to get a dollar for 50 cents' worth of silver, and then they turn over in the bottom of the ditch and declare that the silver dollar that free coinage will give the people will be worth only 50 cents. This will be a very remarkable condition of affairs, indeed. Fifty cents' worth of silver will be worth a dollar, and a dollar will be worth only 50 cents. Did it ever happen before in the history of the world that the people were treated to such a display of ignorance and falsehood as that which is presented to them in the name and behalf of shylock ism?

It is no wonder that events are se shaping themselves that goldbugism will not have even a handful of respectable men behind it when the people go to the polls. Some Throwers of Stones.

Young Mr. Eckels, who came to the country as a very great surprise when named as comptroller of the currency has been talking a good deal with his mouth about the Springfield convention, declaring that "it represented nothing except the desire of a number of politicians who, through accident, found themselves in positions of political power.'

The condition of Mr. Eckels was very aptly described by Judge McConnell in his speech at Springfield, who remarked in passing that a government which could make statesmanship from brass as it had done in the case of young Mr. Eckels, could certainly create a dollar in silver that was good. This was in the nature of a reply to one of the cuckoo slurs on silver. Mr. Eckels's talk about "accidental" importance sounds very funny. He was, it will be remembered, a very insignificant young lawyer, whose fame was confined entirely to his home in Ottawa, Ill., and was not very generally known even in Ottawa, when he was given a soft place in the government service. He happened to be a junior partner in the firm with which Senator Andy O'Connor was connected and O'Connor had a pull. O'Connor wanted to help Eckels, and so when the president asked what he would like to have, he struck high. He mentioned the comptrollership on the principle that by asking for some thing big he might get something small something that would be very much more in keeping with the qualifications and the aspirations of his protege. Senator O'Connor was perhaps as much surprised as was the country when the announcement of the appointment of the youngster to this very important office was made. The young man knew absolutely nothing about finance and he has kept on knowing that ever since.

His talk about "accidental" statesmen. however, furnishes fun for these warm June days. The lads who live in glass houses must be careful how they hurl paying stones about.

The Mexican Situation.

The Washington Post, in an editorial article, makes some interesting comments on the statement of The Birmingham Age-Herald that the necessaries of life cost more in Mexico than they do here. The article is evidently written by some one on the staff of The Post who has traveled in Mexico, for he presents the situation precisely as it is. He says:

As to the wages, we do not pretend to be accurately informed, but the statement that the cost of living in Mexico exceeds the cost of living here is absurdly untrue and every body who has visited that country knows it to be untrue. You can get a better din-ner—better as to the material and the man-ner of its preparation—for one dollar in Mexico than you can in New York or Wash-ington, Clothing made of imported goods by first-class tailors is cheaper. So are shirts and other articles of apparel. House rent is heaper; rooms at the best hotels are cheaper. The same may be said of carriage hire, theater tickets, etc. And all this with the Mexican silver dollar, which is worth only one-half the United States dollar. The fact is that the Mexican dollar will buy more of the necessaries of life in Mexico

This is the testimony of all intelligent persons who have traveled in Mexico. There is but one drawback to the sit uation there and that is that there is not enough profitable work to go around, consequently laborers are compelled to accept the single gold standard wages But the material progress Mexico is making under the stimulus that the high premium on gold gives to her industrial forces, is very rapidly modifying these conditions, which would be a hundred fold worse than they are under the single gold standard.

The Post concludes its article with a little drop of sop to the goldbugs as follows:

It is no doubt true that there is not in the world today enough gold coin to redeem 20 per cent of the paper purporting to represent and to call for gold. But all this cuts no figure in the discussion. nly one kind of money that is 'sound" in Europe, and that is money which all Europe will accept at its face value. Why don't the cuckoo and postmaster organs throughout the country assimilate this great truth and stop talking rot and babbling of things beyond their knowldge and comprehension?

We take pleasure in correcting a part of the foregoing. The quantity of available gold, instead of cutting no figure in the discussion, is at the root of the whole matter. That is the whole trouble. If there were enough gold to sustain the business and currency of the world we should have no goldbugs among the bankers and money lenders. If gold were more plentiful than silver, the money dealers would be silver bugs. In short, if the supply of gold were sufficient, we should have no money question to vex us, for all classes of people would be in a high state of progress and prosperity, with fair prices and a constantly enlarging volume of business. Under cover of the content that existed, shylock would seek to demonetize gold, and place the money standard in the smaller volume of silver.

We also take pleasure in informing The Post once again that there is not now and never has been any money which is current in all Europe at its face value. When money goes beyond the limits of the nation that creates it, it ceases to be money, and does not circulate as money. Heretofore, the peo ple of this country have not been in the habit of making either their political views or their money to fit the ideas and usages of "all Europe" or any part of it. Whether they shall do so hereafter is the great question that is to be tested at the polls in 1896. We shall expect to see The Post chronicle the result and approve it.

Woman This Century.

A very great number of newspaper writers are having a good deal to say these days about this being woman's century. It is hardly probable, however, that they realize just how true their claim is.

Woman in this day and generation is certainly taking a very important place in the world of endeavor. The recent census report on the occupations of woman is a very interesting document, showing as it does how the representatives of the fair sex are forging to the front in all lines. In some occupations, those that best fit their physical and intellectual natures, the women leve almost completely crowded the men out. On the stage, in music, in journalism and other literary fields, they are in fair proportion with men, and the figures in some of the learned professions are decidedly interesting. For instance, there are 4,555 women physicians and surgeons, 1,235 women preachers, 735 professors in colleges and 208 women lawvers. The figures grow even more interesting when it is shown that in 1890 there were 219 women mining coal, 42 stone masons, 54 coopers, 663 marble and stone cutters, 191 carpenters, 194 brickmakers, 59 blacksmiths, 32 wood chor-pers and 30 quarry women. Nothing seems beyond the fin de siecle woman when necessity compels her to earn a livelihood. This could not be more strikingly illustrated than by the figures that show 669 women engaged in the avocation of telegraph linemen, or line women. Indeed, woman seems to have found a place in every avocation and everywhere except in the army and navy. There is no chance for the amazons as yet; but even that may come.

Money in Fruit.

The recent convention of Georgia fruit growers held at Tennille, demonstrated the fact that there is money in fruit celture in this state. In an ar ticle on the work of the convention The Augusta Chronicle says:

It was shown that the delegates in attendrepresented 15,550 trees in full bearing at least 10,000 additional trees wer not represented, making a total of 25,550 trees. Estimating that these trees will yield two crates each, the product will be 51,100 crates, or about 100 carloads. It is safe to say that Washington county's fruit erop of this year will bring in a revenue of $100,000. Among the largest fruit growers are Dr. H. N. Hollifield, 2,500 trees; J. H. Palmer, 1,500 trees; J. D. Franklin, 1,300 trees; B. S. Boatwright, 1,200, while there are a number of growers having 500 tree and less. The secretary, Mr. J. C. Har mon, ex-maye of Tennille, has a grove which has yielded him a comfortable in-some for the last fifteen years.

The above is a splendid showing: Georgia is undoubtedly one of the greatest fruit producing states in the country; and if, occasionally, the grow ers lose a little by untimely frosts, they make up for the slight deficiency of one season in the prodigal abundance of another. That the fruit crop of one county alone should net a revenue of $100,000 to the men who manage it is matter for state congratulation and speaks volumes for the fine, prolific soil of Georgia

We have a great state for fruit, and the whole country is now aware of it.

To a Correspondent.

A correspondent writes from Alabama that he has been having a tilt with some of his goldbug neighbors, and he takes his pen in hand, as it were, to ask The Constitution a few leading questions.

Without reproducing the text of his letter, we will answer his questions in the order in which he asks them.

"Legal tender" carries its meaning in the term. It is money that the government has made a lawful tender for all debts, both public and private. That to say, if our correspondent owes a debt he can compel his creditor to ac cept greenbacks although the creditor may demand gold. In this way, the government protects its own issues of money and prevents creditors from demanding something more valuable than that which they gave. There is a theory among bankers, and it is held by some lawyers, that two individuals making a contract can abrogate and destroy the power of the government to issue lawful money-that is to say, a creditor may bind a debtor to pay his debt in gold, and that when this is done, silver and greenbacks cease to be legal tender in the payment of this particular debt. But this is nonsense on the face of it, and if the contention ever comes before an honest court for settlement it will be disposed of along with other absurdities.

Gold is a full legal tender, and the silver dollar was a full legal tender up to 1878. But in the Bland-Allison bill this was doctored by the goldbugs right under the noses of the silver men The silver dollars in that act were declared to be "a legal tender, at their nominal value, for all debts and dues public and private, except otherwise expressly stipulated in the contract." It will thus be seen that a contract between individuals may, in the case of silver, abrogate the legal tender quality. Subsidiary silver-halves, quarters and dime are legal tender to the extent of $5. Gold has been a full legal tender since 1792. The act of 1873, demonetizing silver, did not abolish the legal tender quality of the dollars that had been coined. But the ruling of Mr. Carlisle which permits a government creditor to discriminate against silver by demanding gold, has made token money of the silver dollar in fact, though not in law.

The technical meaning of "free coin age" is the coining of the bullion with out charge to the owner. As the term is employed in current discussion it means the unlimited coinage of silver. There is no charge for coinage unless the metal is below the standard of fineness.

The "seigniorage" is the difference be tween the commercial and coining value of a metal. There can be no seignior age when either of the money metals can be freely carried to the mints and coined on private account. The silver seigniorage is, the difference between $1.29 and the amount the government had to pay for an ounce of silver under the Bland-Allison act and the Sherman act of 1890.

. We advise our correspondent to stand firm in the democratic faith and not to be led away from it by any of the cuckoo or postmaster organs. Each and every one of them has an ax to grind. Each and every one of them is interested in deceiving the people, just as they were in Andrew Jackson's day, when the people arrayed themselves against the money power which was then intrenched behind the United States bank. But there is this difference. The remonetization of silver is a thousand times more important than the abolition of the bank was.

This was after he had been called out by Page McCarthy, the editor of The Richmond State. At that time Wise was sur-rounded by a large family of loving children, and McCarthy had no attachments of that kind. I heard Wise openly give as his reason for declining that encounter that the battle would not be an even one, because,' he said, 'I had everything in this world to live for, and the other man had no reasons to value his own life."

A story that comes from Buffalo ought a warning against the deadly handorgan and music box. This is told of a young woman of fashion who aims to be very swagger and who had her brown hair deached. It was done in New York, and done well, and when she returned to her ome her kinsfelk were amazed at the bright yellow of her tresses. A woman of some importance gave a reception shortly after the return of the bleached one and invited her. She came, but it so happened that the hostess had hired a hand-organ man to grind out his tunes in the parlor, when the young woman with the bleached hair was announced, he, obliviou of its appropriateness, struck up that goo old music hall tune, "And Her Golden Hair Was Hanging Down Her Back." Instantly the girl halted and blushed so deeply and pitiably that the laughing guests were con trained to stop the organ. The golden naired young woman turned and left the house. To the hostess she is now an ice-berg for all the recognition she gives her. That tune was played with malice afore-thought, she avers, and will brook no con-tradiction. She still gets the laugh from those who know of the story.

Sensational Developments in the Worley Case Yesterday Morning.

A PLEA OF GUILTY IS PROBABLE

Is Said the Whitecaps Have Agreed to a Sentence of Ten Years.

ATTORNEYS WILL NOT DISCUSS IT

The Matter Was To Have Been Decided Yesterday, but There Will Be a Delay of a Few Days - What It Means.

A huge sensation was on the point of being sprung in the United States court yesterday morning. It was the climax of the great Worley whitecap case. The rush of business and the nature of the case called for a short delay. It is known, however, that if present arrangements hold good, the case will be settled in a manner sudde and unexpected.

A proposition has been made to the gov ernment which, if accepted, will bring the big case to a speedy end.

The discussion was general about the custom house yesterday morning, for it was expected that the matter which has been prepared for some days would be acted upon by District Attorney Joe James and Judge Newman.

Five notorious prisoners connected with the killing of Henry Worley are now in Fulton county jail awaiting trial. It is from them that the proposition which has caused such a stir. This is to the effect that they are willing to plead guilty in the hauging case and be sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. In a formal way the government has been notified of their decision.

At one time yesterday it had been agreed to accept this proposition from the prisoners and bring them into court for sen tence, but it was a responsibility greater than the officers of the law in this district cared to shoulder and a few days has been asked for consultation.

However, it is understood that this plea of guilty will be favorable to the officers here and they have agreed so far as they are concerned to accept it with the understanding that in receiving the sentences they are not to receive immunity from the jurisdiction of the state courts or bo acquitted altogether on the charge of mur-

What the result of the affair will be cannot be said, but from present prospects the final settlement will be reached by the last of this week.

Don't Care To Talk.

The lawyers and officers connected with the case have nothing to say in regard to the matter.

Colonel Joe James was seen yesterday afternoon. He did not deny when closely questioned that the deal was on foot, but stated that he had rather not talk about

"Do not ask me anything about it," he said. "I den't care to say anything. If the neatter comes up it will take shape in the courts.

Colonel W. C. Gfenn, who is counsel for the defendants, was much surprised that the proposition to plead guilty had become public. "I do not care to discuss the case," he said. "There has been no settlement reached yet. As to the Killing.

The plea which the whitecaps will enter will rest on the hanging case altogether Henry Werley, before being shot down in his field, was tied by the neck and left to die.

There Is a Splendid Array of Talent in Friday Night's Concert.

Atlanta has had in the past great concerts, but rarely ever has she had grouped together such a brilliant array of taient as will appear at the new Lyceum theater Friday night for the benefit of the woman'

The United States Fifth infantry band and orchestra, which stands am leaders of military bands in this country, will be heard for the first time in an Atlanta theater. The genial adjutant, Lieutenant Liggett, at the fort, has prepared an at-tractive programme for the band that night and it is safe to say that every one who hears the selections will be thoroughly pleased. Selections from "Robin Hood," by De Koven, will be given: It is needless to dwell upon the charming music that is contained in this opera. A col-lege overture by Auber, and "La Serenaby Jaxone, are also announced.

Mr. William Owens, who is without doubt the most popular tenor in Atlanta, will sing a lovely aria and will also be in a duet with Mrs. Sheridan. He always arouses enthuslasm and he will contribute wonderfully to the variety and strength of the programme.

Miss Louise Romare will play two piano solos. She has just completed her studies solos. She has just completed her studies under the celebrated master, Xavier Scharwenka, and as a piano soloist she ranks among the foremost.

They will be prime favorites.

Mr. Frank L. Stanton is to read his charming poem, "St. Michael's Bells," by special request. The mere announcement that he is to read is quite sufficient.

Mrs. Sheridan will make her debut on the concert stage that evening, and no local contralto has ever been so popular. She will also sing in a duet with Mr. Owens. Mr. Lucius Perry Hills will introduce something unique in the line of impersonations and character sketches. As has already been stated, his Georgia mountaineer pieces were the delight of the Lotus Ciub, the Players' and other such celebrated IL-

Mr. Rapdolph Rose is a barytone with a voice of unisual beauty. He is one of the "premiers" of the amateur singers of the city and his will be one of the hotable contributions of the evening.

As will be seen from the above, a large coterie of musicians and elocutionists are to be heard, together with the famous Fifth infantry band and orchest, a. There is nothing at any of the theiters this week, and this, together with the high merits of the noble enterprise, should draw an audience of immense proportions.

He also confessed to having used the torch on a number of box cars and other property belonging to the Central railroad and by his own words convicted himself of the se-with Peritonitis. Yesterday Colonel George Hillyer received a telegram from Ithaca, N. Y., saying that his son, George Hillyer, Jr., was very ill in that city and that the cause of his criti-cal condition was due to peritonitis.

Mr. Hillyer at once wired Dr. Park, of Buffalo, to go to the bedside of his son. Mr. Hillyer took the first train for Ithaca. Last night a telegram was received in the city saying that the young man was in a critical condition but was receiving every care and attention and that he would re-care and attention and that he would recover.

Air. Hillyer, Jr., has just completed a post graduate course at Cornell university and is a man of much talent and has a bright and successful career before him.

He is under the care of Dr. Park, one of the most eminent of Buffalo surgeons. It is hoped by his many friends in this city that he will rapidly improve and soon return to his old home.

In his post graduate course in this famous institution Mr. Hillyer acquitted himself with much credit. The announcement that his condition has been very precarious will be relieved of their anxiety to learn that his condition is much improved.

King of the Georgia Moonshiners Captured | The Amusement Manager Believes He Yesterday Morning.

HE WAS SLEEPING IN HIS LOG HUT

Six Marshals Were After Him and Surrounded the House-He Has a Long and Reckless Record.

Sleeping peacefully on his corncob bed, in a log hut, built in the deep shadow of a dense woodland retreat "Black Bear" Miller, the king of the Georgia moonshiners, was surrounded and captured at 2 o'clock yesterday morning by a force of six deputy marshals:

He was immediately brought to Atlanta, given a preliminary hearing and committed at 10 o'clock vesterday morning on a heavy bond before Judge Nash Broyles.

The deputies regard it as one of the luckiest and biggest captures made by them for some months.

Mac Miller, or the "Black Bear of Haralson," as he is known among the mountai clans, has had a career of unparalleled escapes. He has defied the officers, called upon them to come, and in bold assurance laughed at them in their efforts to locate him. There was a ferocious leer in his little blue eyes when led into the office of the commissioner yesterday morning. He was dressed in an old blue jeans suit, spattered with mud, and ragged with long wear. His muscular breast was covered with a homespun shirt and he held a faded hat in one hand.

"They got me this time, but gol drat 'em they had to git me when I wuz snoozn', bein' as none un 'em dazent face me when I'm er wake."

Throughout his whole trial the manarch of the moonshiners was still defiant. He was captured, but not conquered, and he consoled himself with the thought that it took six men to get him.
Ten years ago, when Dr. Nelms was in showed himself as a successful moon shiner. Strange stories were then told of the many ways he had of manufacturin the mountain dew and concealing his stills from the officers. He was captured once and sentenced. As soon as his release was given he hied himself to his native heath and when the night was dark turned out the essence of corn by the gallon. In-numerable attempts were made to capture him, but he knew the country for mile around, and with wonderful elertness al-ways managed to get away when the "revenues" would make their appearance. "Black Bear" has a reckless look, and it was the reckless life that attracted him. Besides this, he believed with others of his lik that it was no great harm to of his ilk that it was no great harm to make whisky. He could not see why the government should say to him that he should not make his corn into liquor any more than it could tell him to stop making sirup from his cane.

It was his way of making a living, and what had the government, or what had those revenue men to do with it? So "Block Bear" made his mountain dew, and he has been making it regularly for the last ten years, in defiance of the efforts of the marshals.

Schemed To Catch Him.

During the past few months many attempts have been made to capture the man. Four stills which were known to have been operated by him and the men employed by him have been seized, but at each raid it appeared that the monishiners had been warned in advance of the approach of the officers, and it was always found that they had silently stole away. Several months ago Murshals Sibley and Machael beautiful beautif McDonald brought him to bay, and they thought that his capture was a matter of away. For two days the marshals ran him. They chased him for sixty miles, that he had built another still in a remote section of the county. That afternoon Deputies H. P. Sibley, M. W. Scott, W. O. Johnson, W. S. Cole, Ed Merimeath and S. A. Mann made their way to Wildeat district, where it had been learned that Miler was operating. They walked some miles and were finally led to his still, hid away on a branch at the foot of a st hill. There was no smoke coming from the chimney, and the officers knew that no one was at work there; but waited, hoping that the moonshiners would come

The deputies divided, and from the different stands watched every path carefully. But no one came. Then it was determined Miller lived. His cabin was located in a Miller lived. His cabin was located in a grove of woods half a mile from the branch upon which the still had been built. It was planned that two of the officers should enter the place while the other four watched the windows and guard-

Marshals Sibley and Scott made their way to the back door as quickly as possi-ble. The bolt was lifted from the outside. Once inside, it was not long before they had found the room where reposed the maker of the moonshine. His wife had been awakened by the noise, and demanded to know who was there. Without answering, the officers rushed in with their rifles ready. The "Black Bear" was saoring away, little dreaming of the danger that lurked near. The marshals aroused him. He was al-lowed to put on his jeans suit. Then as on as possible the tr.p to Atlanta was

POLICE PICNIC TODAY.

Attanta's Bluecoats, Their Families and Friends Go to Indian Spring.

The police picnic will take place at Indian Spring today and from the indication it will be one of the largest and most sue cessful of the season, a large number of tickets having been sold by the officers. As many of the force as can be spared will go down to the delightful resort on the Southern railroad and the day's outing will be made pleasant for their visitors, it being an assured fact that the best of order will

The special train carrying the several hundred picnicers will leave the union de-pot at 7:30 o'clock this morning, and on it will be one of the best bands in the city and a bountiful supply of refreshments.

The special train is expected to arrive at the springs at about 9:30 o'clock and will return to the city at a seasonable hour to night, the Southern Railway Company having guaranteed to run an excellent and reliable schedule for the city's guardians. All of the usual games and pastimes will be indulged in during the day in addition to which will be a number of special features and nothing will be left undone that would contribute to the pleasure of the visitors.

Indian Spring is one of the most delightful places in the state, and many will take advantage of the cheap rate given by the police to visit one of Georgia's most famous summer and winter resorts.

The picnic will be in charge of Captain Joiner, Sergeant Moss and Detective Conn, who will select a number of assistants to conduct the details of the affair and look after the comfort of the visitors.

Call Officer Beavers has been selected to look after the refreshments during the day, and he promises to have a supply sufficient to meet the desire of the visitors.

Chief Councily will be unable to go on account of having some urgent matters to look after, and Captain Jennings will not attend for the same reason. The picnic will be in charge of Captain

GOT THE BLACK BEAR FULTON IS HOPEFUL

Will Tide Over His Troubles.

HE IS STILL HELD IN CUSTODY

He Was Not Given a Preliminary Hearing Yesterday, as Was Expected. Miss Sylvester Active.

J. E. Fulton, the American Amusement Association man, who was arrested Monday, charged with cheating and swindling was not given a preliminary examination yesterday, as was expected.

Fulton was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Miss Sylvester, the bicycle rider, who claimed that she had been defrauded by the American Amusement Association which was organized and managed by J. E. Fulton, the latter having opened a pleasure and amusement resort at Brisbine park one day last week.

Yesterday's Constitution told of Monday's developments in the case, which were decidedly interesting. In addition to the warrant sworn out by Miss Sylvester, one was taken out by Mrs. Hutchinson, Fulton's landlady, her claim amounting to something like $95 for board during the three weeks Fulton and his family have been in the city.

Fulton was released on the warrant taken out by Miss Sylvester, Mr. W. C. Haile signing his bond in that case, but the boarding house warrant held him over at the police station, he being unable to secure a bondsman the second time.

The warrants were taken out before Justice of the Peace Foute, and it was to the latter's court that Fulton was taken yesterday morning for trial. When the case was called, however, Fulton's attorney, Mr. James F. O'Neil, stated to the court that his client, under his lawful right, demanded a change of venue, preferring not to be tried by Justice Foute.

The demand was recognized by Judge Foute, and the case was ordered transferred to Judge Bloodworth's court, and Fulton and his attorneys, accompanied by Bailiff Smith, of Judge Foute's court, who nade the arrest, then went to Justice Bloodworth and requested an immediate trial of an important case, and having others to follow, he declined to hear the Fulton case yesterday, and set the hour of 9 o'clock this morning for its hearing. Fulton was again taken charge of by Bailiff Smith, and being unable to give during the day was detained at Foute's courtroom on Peachtree street, during the afternoon and all last night, he having made arrangements with the bailiff to detain him there instead of being locked up at police headquarters. The coets and property of the American Amusement Association, consisting of a desk and other office furniture in the com-pany's office in the Equitable building, the whole valued at about $75, was attached for the debts of the association yesterday on warrants sworn out by Miss Sylvester and the East Atlanta Land Company, the latter's claim being for office rent for June. The property was carried to Judge Foute's quarters and stored for safe keeping. It is said that other attachments will be sworn out against the property of the company, a number of claims having been found against Fulton and his amusement

Among these claims is one made by Young O'Neil, amounting to about $30, for work done at Brisbine park, he having sodded and placed the grounds in condition for the show given there by Fulton. Two colored men also have a claim, amounting to about $25, for work, they having white washed the fences, grand stand and other uildings at the park.

Fulton was seen last night in the custody of Bailiff Smith at Judge Foute's courtroom, and when questioned about his difficulties, said that he would undoubtedly come out all right, and that he intended to remain in Atlanta and carry out his purpose of running an amusement place in this city. He appeared to expect assitance from some source, and claimed that he, with some associates, would bring weeks, by which he expected to make

Fulton says that the entire claims against him will not amount to over $175, and that if he could have his liberty he would soon be able to make a satisfactory settlement with his creditors. It was said last night that his landlady had offered to withdraw her charge against him on the payment of $50, and Fulton's friends were endeavoring to arrange the matter at a late hour. Should they fail in that, efforts will be made to at least get the criminal charge withdrawn, leaving the case stand

Fulton claims that his trouble is the result of poor attendance at his amuse ment place, and that if he is given a chance he can soon recover and place himself in sound condition.

The oucome of the cse this morning will be looked for with considerable interest, the company having attained much noto-riety by its flaming circulars and news-paper advertisements. Messrs. J. F. O'Neil and P. F. Smith will defend Fulton at the trial today.

TO THE UNITED STATES COURT Miss Sylvester Will Take Her Case to the Government for Hearing. Colonel Joe James was just ready to leave his office yesterday afternoon. A pretty young lady with flashing black eyes and a quick, elastic step walked in the door.

She introduced herself as Miss Sylvester the champion bicyclienne of the world. She came on business, and it was not long be-fore she had told of the wrongs which she had suffered by the trickery of the man who called her down from Boston to be a star in the "Great American Amusement Company." She made out her affidavits, and from what was brought out, she was assured that there was a strong case against John Fulton for using the mails for fraudulent purposes. The warrant will be taken out this morning and an effort will be made to take it from the jurisdiction of all other courts and put it in charge of the United States authorities. But there was another feature of the visit of this pretty wheeler that interested the grave and reverend attorney. In her he found a relative and discovered a branch of his family that had long been lost.

Miss Sylvester was leaning against a ta-ble toying with a tablet upon which was printed the name of the district attorney.

"You have the same name as my father," she said. "My name was Miss Annie James before I went on the stage."
Then Colonel James became interested and a comparison of family trees showed a series of remarkable coincidences. It final-ly developed that they were distantly related. Colonel James accompanied the pretty young athlete down stairs and as-sured her that he would do all he could to push the case which she had placed in his Tennessee Editors Will Not Be Entertained in Atlanta Today.

A FULL PROGRAMME WAS ARRANGED

But They Slipped by in the Quietude of the Late Evening-The Programme for the Day.

In the silence of the night a special train bearing 100 Tennessee editors passed through Atlanta and hurried on toward Chattanooga, as if the editors, who had been sunning in the waves of Cumberland, were anxious to get home.

Those same editors were the objects of considerable solicitude by the executive board of the exposition yesterday afternoon, at which time a full programme for the entertainment of the journalists from Tennessee was mad out.

The programme, consisting of two rides about the city and the juiclest barbecue that ever was served, was finally arganged, and when the directors of the exposition went to bed last night they dreamed of what a time they would have show-ing the Tennessee editors the sights of this town and steering them up against a jolly barbecue today. The editors were expected in town at 7 o'clock this morning, and it was thought that they would breakfast at the hotels. At 11 o'clock every member of the exposition board was scheduled to meet at the hotels and take charge of the editors. They were to be given a ride over the prominent streets of the city, the ride ending at Woodhaven, Mr. W. A. Hemp-hill's elegant rural home near Ponce de Leon springs, at 1:30 o'clock, elegant barbecued meats, the delicious

Brunswick stew and other delights were to be served to the editors, the exposition directors and the members of the ladies' board dispensing the hospitality. Then the editors were to be carried out to the exposition grounds, where everything on the place was to be shown and explained to

That was the full programme agreed upon by the exposition boards, and they had mapped out a fine day's entertainment for the writers of the Tennessee press. Mr. Sam Inman, who once lived in Tennessee, took a special interest in the preparation of the programme. All the directors will get up this morning intending to take charge of the Tennessee editors at 11 o'clock, and they will be amazed when they read in The Constitution this morning that the editors came into town last night a 9 o'clock on their special train, and without fifteen minutes' delay proceeded to Chattanooga, where the party will disband today.

The action of the editors was no doubt the result of a misunderstanding. They originally announced their intention of spending today in Atlanta, and every preparation was made to take care of them by the exposition company. They have been at Cumberland since last Friday night. They spent yesterday in Macon, and were shown the city.

The Atlantas put up a star game against the Little Rocks yesterday. The home team played without an error and at the bat they lit the ball for thirteen safe hits, two of them doubles.

Horner was in the box for Atlanta and pitched a magnificent game of ball, but five hits geing secured off his delivery. Morse, who pitched for the Little Rocks, was hit hard at times and this, with the errors by the Little Rock aggregation, netted Atlanta sixteen runs in four innings. In the fourth Morse was taken out and Crinnion, Little Rock's new twirler, was substituted and pitched a good game. hits were all that the Atlantas could get off him. He struck out seven of the At-

Little Rock, Ark. June 11.—(Special.)— The home team was downed in ignominious defeat before the Atlantas today. The vic-tory of Knowles's aggregation over the io-cals was due to the superior work of the visitors at the bat and in the field. Horner was in the box for the visitors and nitched was in the box for the visitors and pitched was in the box for the visitors and pitched a magnificent game and was a puzzle to the home team throughout the contest. Morse, the star pitcher of the Southern League, started in to pitch for the home team and was batted out of the box in four innings. Morse is the same twirler who came so near shutting out the Georgia boys in Atlanta and then lost his game. Crinnion, the new Little Rock twirler, inished the game and did it well, yielding ished the game and did it well, yielding celly two scratch hits. Horner received almost perfect support, though it was not necessary. The visitors started the fireworks in the first tipping, nor did they see ase till sixteen big runs were tallied, when Crinnion relieved Morse. The nearest the home team came to scoring was in the sixth inning, when Holbright reached third. The home team is very badly crippied and the umpire was very rank, but pled and the umpire was very rank, but these things cannot be attributed to At-lanta's victory today, for Atlanta put up a winning game and the pitching of Horner was the greatest seen here from a Southern SLIM ATTENDANCE AT GRAVESEND. Perfect Weather, but the Poorest Card of the Meeting.

Card of the Meeting.

Gravesend, L. I., June II.—The attendance at today's races wis rather light. The card was vastly inferior than other programmes of the meeting. The weather was perfect and the track in fine condition. Three favorites, a second choice and two outsiders were the winners. The first event was a six-furlong dash for three-year-olds, in which eleven low-classed horses went to the post. The start was very bad. Ina and Milton T, had the race between them, and ran as named the entire route, Ina winning by a length and a half. In the second race, Captain T, set a hot pace to the head of the stretch, but there Patrician, the favorite, moved up and passed him, firally winning by a length. In the third event, Mack Briggs rushed to the front, and, making his own pace, won in the driving by three parts of a length in front of Tealerner. Briggs rushed to the front, and, making his own pace, won in the driving by three parts of a length in front of Tenderness. Song and Dance won easily in the fourth by a length and a half from Chiswick. Ridicule, the favorite in the fifth race; went away at the drop of the flag at a terrific pace, outrunning the field up to the stretch, where she died away, and Wernberg, taking the lead, won by a length from Declare. Only two horses started in the last race—Charade and Owiet—which was captured by the latter.

First race, selling, six furlongs, Ina won, Milton T. second, Fannie B, third. Time, 1115.

Second race, handicap, mile and a sixteenth, Patrician won, Captain T. second, Siephen J. third. Time, 1:32.

Third race, for maiden two-year-olds, five furiouss, Mack Briggs won, Tenderness second, Bejamie third. Time, 1:224.

Fourth race, selling, one mile and a sixteenth, Song and Dance won, Chiswick second, Now or Never third. Time, 1:50.

Fifth race, six furiouss, Wernberg won, Declare second, Neimar third. Time, 1:102.

Sixth race, one mile, Owlet won, Charale second, Time, 1:12.

At Latonin.

Latonia, Ky., June II.—The feature of to-day's races was the Merchants stake, which was locked upon as a practical walk-over for Henry of Navarre. It proved a beautiful race between the turf king and three-year-old Brendob. The time, 155, was fast for the track, which had been cut deep and was slow. Brendoo led all the way until well down the stretch, when Perkins was compelled to urge Navarra. He came fast when called upon, and won races of the meeting.

First race, selling, five furongs-Right-more won, Poco Tiempo second, Black-hawk third. Time, 118. Second race, one mile-Toots won, Cresecond race, one mile-Toots won, Crese second, Merry Monarch third. Time. Third race, five and a half furlongs—Myrtle Harkness won, Chale B second, Lufra third. who have announced their intention of exhibiting and have asked for such space as they will occupy will not put up a building, they will occupy will not put up a building, but expect the exposition company to supply them with a large area of space in one of the principal buildings of the exposition. At the meeting of the exposition board yesterday afternoon President Collier had the minister's letter read and requested that action be taken on it. It was stated that much more space had been asked for in the manufactures building than could possibly be supplied. It was shown that there is a perfect army of exhibitors who want to get in and that the great difficulty is in selecting the best ones. However, every one was strongly of the opinion that Mexico should be well represented by all means and after the question was fully means and after the question was fully discussed, a decision was reached by which 10,000 square feet will be set apart for that space will not be divided, as it is the purpose of the Mexican commissioner t have an excellent collective exhibit of man ufactured products and resources from that to the manufactures building to accommodate Mexico. This is the only way that the exposition management can devise to accommodate the Mexicans, as already a great deal of the space in the manufactures building has been assigned to exhibitors Sousa Will Write a March.

One of the great marches of the future may be Sousa's "Cotton States and Interna-tional Exposition March."

ter, yesterday telegraphed to Mr. Edmund A. Felder, assistant to the president, that he would take great pleasure in writing an exposition march. His telegram was in response to one sent by Mr. Felder asknig that he write a march to be dedicated to the exposition. Mr. Sousa was at Bangor, Me., at the time and replied without hesita-tion that he would take great pleasure in writing a march for the exposition, and would make it his best effort.

er famous and popular marches means a great deal. He is without question the greatest writer of marches in the country and when he says that he will make the "Cotton States and International Exposition March" his best effort, his statement is no small compliment to the exposition.

The new paper doll, issued by the J. C. Aver Company, Lowell, Mass, is certainly a beauty. Its pretty face and many changes of fashionable clothing and hats make it a favorite in every doll family to which it goes. The small sum of 12 cents, in stamps, brings this doll-bride to any little girl who wants the very prettiest and sweetest of dolls.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed proposals will be received by the beard of education of Madison, Ga., until 12 m. on the 3d of July, 1835, for the erection of two public school buildings—one of brick and the other of wood—in accordance with the plans and specifications now on file in office of board of education at Madison, Ga., and office of Hunnicutt & Bellingrath, Atlanta, Ga., and office of Tinsley & Wilson, architects, Lynchburg, Va. Each competing contractor must encicse with his bid a certified check for one hundred dollars, payable to said board of education as a guarantee that he will enter into contract with Said board and give bond with sufficient security in double the amount of his bid for the faithful completion of the buildings by December 1, 1835. Cookman Roberts, editor of The Philadelphia Herald, who ranks equally high as a musical authority and a litterateur and who is es of the most crudite scholars a column review of the book, Mr. Roberts says in a recent issue of The Herald:

"We are pleased to commend to our reading clientele this clever little story by Mrs. Cappers, nee Miss Dody Higher, so long and favorably known to readers of The Louisville Courier-Journal. We interrupt and favorably known to readers of the Louisville Courier-Journal. We interrupt at once the thread of our comment to call attention to the little faux pas of the Musical Courier, which, in its last issue, notes this book and refers repeatedly to Mr. Higbee as the author. "It was Horace Walpole we think, who said: "To him who thinks life is a comedy; to him who feels life is a tragety," and it is with a frank, though not hopeless, recognition of the underlying truth involved in this both mot that Mrs. Geppert (Aliss Higbee) has written.

"The Reconteur," in The Musical Courier, suggests that only healthy, wholesome natures can safely read this book, but we respectfully differ, in that we are sure no one can gather anght but wholesome thought, which in time may become a safe and reusonable basis upon which to judge of certain things which, as Lowell says, belong to the eternal verities, and thence to determine a rule of at least artistic, if not social life.

"We have long believed that the man who becomes a brandy dricker from the perusal of "L'Assomair," has a predisposition upon which the reading has had no appreciable influence. So if one becomes more pessimistic because of the influence of the Scherzo in B Flat Minor," it must be because his thoughts do that way tend, and he sees truth as truth regardless of its nudity."

"The artistic excellence of the book is distinctly marked, and it shows that the Georgia Crops Now in a Flourishing Condition in All Sections.

OFFICIAL REPORT FOR THE PAST WEEK

Officer Hunt Says That the Conditionn Throughout the State Are Good. What the Report Says.

Georgia crops are flourishing. Every section of the state is blooming under the touch of nourishing showers and summer sunshine.

The report of Forecast Officer Georg Hunt for the past week gives good prospects. It is the best, in fact, that has gone out from the office of the weather bureau during this season and from present conditions there is every reason to believe that huge harvests will follow. The report of

"The rainfall of the week has been light and unevenly distributed, and white tase crops are not suffering for moisture in any portion of the state, rains would be bene ficial in the eastern, central, and southern counties. Temperature has been all that could have been desired; neither low nor excessive, it allowed constant field work and was still sufficiently warm to give a great impetus to all field growth. Some farmers have not yet succeeded in ridding healthy condition, with all staple crops growing rapidly. Corn is in fine shape; cot-ton late, but showing great improvement; oats a perfect crop and ready for harvest;

"Reports received from correspondents of the western counties show a very satisfactory crop condition in that part of the state. A few scattered showers have prevented vegetation from suffering for want of moisture, but more rain would now be beneficial. Some farmers are busy harvesting oats and wheat, the former of which will be an unusually fine crop, and the latter only fair. Cotton has improved slowly, but is still quite late, and in some fields has not been entirely freed from grass and weeds. Corn is in a healthy condition and is looking healthy. Watermelons are not in as good condition as usual; stands are poor. Fruit and vegetables are in fine shape, and an abundant supply for market and home consumption is expected.

"Reports received from this section indicate that the crop conditions are very promising. The weather during the past week has been all that the planter could desire and as a result all fields are about clear of grass, and farmers generally are well up with their work, and all crops are looking well. Both corn and cotton have improved. Cotton has most all been chopped out; stands are not quite perfect. Corn is a very good stand. That of the uplands has received its second working, while the low land corn is just receiving its first working. The latter has been injured somewhat by worms. Farmers are planting peas in large quantities. Wheat is being cut; crop short. Spring oats are fine but acreage small, Gardens are in excellent condition, but are beginning to suffer a little for the want of rain. Potato slips not growing, and it has been a hard matter to get them to live. Early peaches and plums being sent to market. Peach crop an immense one. June appies are ripening. Melons doing well. Temperature in the east section has been slightly above the normal, and little or no rain has fallen. Some localities received light showers on the 5th and 9th. All counties are now needing rain and some quite badly. Corn is being laid by; some fields are tasselling, and there is a prospect of a fair crop. Cotton is small and stands not good. Watermelons are looking well and are now in biossom. Rice is in good condition. With a few exceptions oats will yield well and are now placed in the shock. The hot sun of the first pait of the week did considerable damage to plums. Pears and apples will be a short crop. Early peaches are now being shipped, and the crop will be very large."

considerable damage to plums. Pears and apples will be a short crop. Early peaches are now being shipped, and the crop will be very large."

The weather in this section during the past week has been very dry and hot. The hot weather has been of great benefit to the cotton, but corn is beginning to need rain. Cotton is doing nicely, but it is small for the season. The stands are generally good. Corn is being laid by and some is beginning to tassel. A very good crop of spring oats is being cut, though the acreage is small. Cane crop generally in good condition, but the harvest will be below the average, as a considerable quantity of wane seed was killed by the cold winter. Pea planting is now the order of the day, and a large acreage will be put in. Gardens are suffering for rain. Melons are a little late but growing nicely. The fruit crop will be very large, especialy peaches and pums. Although there has been very little rainfall in the southern counties during the past week, there has been a steady improvement in crops. Cotton and corn are beginning to need more moisture, but are still in good condition. Oats are ripening rapidly and harvest is in progress. The yield will be above the average of past years. Watermelons are good and the supply will be abundant. Fields are generally clean of grass and weeds. Farmers are commencing to plant field peas. Sugarcane and rice are reported in fine shape, with every prospect of an abundant yield. Fruit continues fine and is rapidly approaching maturity. Fruit continues fine and is rapidly approaching maturity.
Rainfall in the southeast section has been local in character, but most places received showers on the 6th or 7th and send encouraging reports. Some have received no rainfall for weeks, and reports in such cases are very discouraging. Fields have been well cleaned out. Cotton is looking well. I sh notatoes fine, both in quantity and quality, and are being dug and placed on the market. The rice crop promises a good return. Peaches are ripening and the yield will be unusually large. Some report that pears are also a good crop.

PLEASING PROSPECTS STRIKING COMPLEXIONS.

They Are Always Produced from Within and Not by Outward Appli-

Did you ever stop to think that the delicate nerves and capillary veins of the skin are what cause the complexion? These ar-tistic little members of the body are just what make a good or a bad skine If you keep them bright, clean and healthy you will have a fine complexion; if you do not, you will be pale, sallow and probably with a dark colored skin in spite of the paleness.

Do you know the secret of keeping the nerves of the skin and the capillary veins in fine shape? There is but one way and that is by healthful stimulation. This and this alone will do it. But it should be re-membered that unhealthful stimulation is membered that unhealthful stimulation is not only useless, but injurious. The only absolutely pure medicinal stimulant known is Duffy's Pure Mait Whisky. It gently and healthily quickens the action of the little blocd vessels and causes them to glow, and it hus impart à health to the face and the entire body. And it is for this reason that it is so popular. You should remember that other so-called stimulants will not produce this effect, though. A healthy complexion cannot be made by using any thing unhealthy, and so when any driggist or grocer tries to sell you an inferior preparation, do not be deceived, but insist on having the genuine and only reliable one having the genuine and only reliable one

New York, June 11 .- The government crop report for June was more favorable than generally expected in the face of the sensational rumors set affoat during the past few weeks by the bulls on wheat, and accordingly the shorts in the Grangers diligently set to work to cover up contracts put out on the stories of serious damage to the crop. This was the main reason for the strength of the stock, but in addition there were other factors at work. The advances in wages made daily by the leading manufacturers of the country and the steady rise in the prices for iron and steel products also stimulated purchases of securities. The features of speculation, however, were the Grangers and of this Furlington and Quincy was the favorite. The stock moved up from 82% to $3% on transactions of 45,500 shares, 824 to 834, on transactions of 45,500 shares, the heaviest day's business for a long time. The largest buyer was said to be a well-known Chicago -capitalist identified with street railroad interests. Other specially strong stocks were Louisville and Nashville, Western Union, Oregon Navigation, the Vanderbilts, Pacific Mail, Tennessee Coal and Iron, Manhattan, New England and Northern Pacific. The anthracite coalers were weak, especially for Lackawanna, which fell to 15945. Susquehanna wanna, which fell to 1591₂. Susquehanna and Western, on the other hand, was steadier and recovered to 24% on reiterated statements that a practical man is to succeed President Borg, and that the com-pany had secured fresh financial backing. The Industrials were strong for Tobacco and Sugar. Chicago Gas declined ½ to 73% on the veto of the consolidated bill and later returned to 74%. O'Dell & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

By Private Wire to J. C. Knox, Manager. New York, June 11.—Prices declined 406 points early in the day, owing to disappointing Liverpool advices and local as well as continental selling. The tears argued that a crop of 9,000,000 had been made in 1891 on an acreage of 10,000,000 acres, the same as that estimated for the coming crop. Still later there was a raily, owing mainly to covering of shorts and some unfavorable crop advices from Texas, where rainfalls were reported at a number of points. Subsequently prices again receded on local liquidation, but toward the close they became stronger, mainly owing to the report that Neill Bros., of New Orleans, will issue a bullish circular within a day or two. Most months closed here only 1 point lower than last night, and December was 1 point higher. The final tone was steady after sales of 117,100 bales. New Orleans declined 405 points, but recovered most of the loss. Private Manchester advices were quiet but firm. Liverpool closed half a point lower on next crop months and quiet with spot sales of only 8,000 bales. Quick turns are recommended in a narrow market like the present.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

New York, June 11.—Summary of Hubbard Bros. & Co.'s cotton letter: To the surprise of the trade the bureau reports failed to create any decided interest in Liverbool, and after minor fluctuations the market closed a shade lower than last evening. It is reported from New Orleans that the hyprovement at the close of Liverpool was caused by a report that Mr. Neill would publish a bullish circular on the cotton crop. In the local market the situation is not as clear as of late. There is no diminution in the bullish feeling regarding the ultimate course of the market, but the demand from outside sources has not appeared as was hoped for as a result of the bureau report. During the afternoon the statement in regard to the probability of Mr. Neill's issuing a bullish circular tomorrow became public property, and under its influence the market advanced, closing very steady at about last night's prices. The feeling continues very bullish, and the improvement in crop advices, which is expected to be confirmed by the government report tomorrow, has no influence at the present upon the market. Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

New York, June 11.—(Special.)—It was believed here yesterday that Liverpool would attach more weight to the bullish bureau report than our market had done. The fact that Liverpool this morning was practically unchanged was a distinct disappointment to the bulls, and sellers at the opening outnumbered the buyers. August opened at 7.16, rallied to 7.20 and then became weak declining to 7.15; but in the last thirty minutes New Orleans telegrams reporting that Neill was about to issue a very bullish crop circular suddenly changed the temper of the market, and August advanced to 7.20. The close was steady at about the best of the day, 7.20 being bid for August. We can see nothing to change our opinion that cotton must gradually sell higher, and whenever prices weaken we trink it would be well to buy.

New York, June 11.—Cotton fell 4 to 6 points, recovered most of this and then again dropped 3 to 5 points, but rallied and closed steady at a decline of 1 point with sales of 117,100 bales. New Orleans declined 4 to 5 points, but recovered most of this. Liverpool advanced 1 point, but lost this and next crop month closed ½ point lower than last night and quiet. The spot sales were $8,000 bales at unchanged prices. Port receipts, 2,942, against 1,375 this day last week and 3,577 last year; thus for this week 8,613, against 6,688 last week. Spot cotton here was quiet and unchanged. Port exports, 1,966 to the continent. In Manchester yarns were quiet and steady; cloths quiet.

thent. In Manchester yarns were quiet and steady; cloths quiet.

Today's features: Prices were irregular, alternately decilining and advancing within moderate limits, but in the end the market shows steadiness and the last prices were about the same as those of yesterday.

Against the market today there was the disappointing news from Liverpooi, local selling, some settling on continent orders, and the idea prevailed among some operators that the government repert would be interpreted as favorable to lower prices, inasmuch as the acreage for the coming season is given by Statistician Robinson at 20,184,000 acres, or practically the same as in 1891, when a crop was raised of 9,035,000 bales. The answer to this, however, is that the acreage was greatly underestimated by the government just as it was for the last season, when the government began with an estimate in May, 1894, of only 16,856,000 acres and afterwards raised it to 23,630,000. Some think the bureau figures of vesterday indicate a crop of not over 7,500,000 bales. This afternoon the market was stronger on local covering, mainly due to a report that Neill Bros. will issue a builish circular in a day or two. The undertore of the market seemed to be firm in spite of the momentary narrowness of speculation.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

The Feeling Was Bullish Yesterday. Prices Left Off Fractionally Higher.

Chicago, June 11.-The government confirmed the previous private reports of dam age to wheat in the statements yesterday. The price of the cereal was, therefore, arm today, but as the injury was quite well compensated for by the advance that has already taken place, there was no further extraordinary addition to values. was a disposition to view the report as favorable rather than otherwise when it was first received, as a decline on the curb indicated, but that the popular opinion was dleated, but that the popular opinion was bullish was testified to by a full recovery after the opening today. Succeeding the spasm of strength, there was an easter tone developed on free realizing by early buyers, and although the close was slightly above that of yesterday, still there was more strength evident than during the earlier portion of the day. July wheat epened from 79½ to 80c, sold up to 8½c, closing at 80% 80½c -850½c higher than yesterday. Cach wheat was steady, but the close was easy.

Cash wheat was steady, but the close was easy.

Local trading was all there was to the corn market today. Price changes were keeping in line with wheat in an indifferent sort of a way. The opening and early transactions were at comparatively firm figures, but the last hour was notably weak. July corn opened at 52c, sold between 52% and 51% 61st of 10st of Provisions—There was stagnation in product today. Business was lamentably duil and prices were generally easy. At first the hog market exerted a weakening influence, and then, approaching the end, grain threw the weight of its surplus depression into provisions. The close on July pork was 10c lower than yesterday; on July lard 2½c lower, and on July ribs 5c lower.

Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter. By private wire to J. C. Knox, manager, Chicago, June 11.—Although the government report came in a little higher on condition of easier wheat, $1 was generally expected. It is probably the most bullish sent out from Washington in years. The feeling immediately after its receipt yesterday was a little weak on account of its not being in the sixtles, but after reconsidering the report the traders came to the conclusion that it was more bullish than its surface would indicate, especially as considerable damage is reported from droughts since it was compled. Early cables also indicated that foreigners considered the report bullish, as Liverpool came higher in the face of our decline yesterday. The high condition in California is probably a little misleading, as reliable reports from that state indicate that the corn has run down very seriously in the last fourteen days. We should say a very fair estimate of the wheat yield, both winter and spring, as suggested by the government, is 400,000,000 bushels. There were good buying orders at the opening, but all were quickly absorbed. Holders who sold out yesterday, seeing the tendency of the market, bought freely, and it was not until July touched $134, an advance of 2c, from the opening, that the market received a setback. It was then the same old story. As soon as offerings appeared there was but little wanted and prices quickly receded Lyc., although the situation is very bullish. It seems very hard to sustain values; as soon as the market advances above 80c. there appears to be large offerings from some sources that are not visible. Bradstreet's made a decrease in the world's visible supply of 3,800,000 bushels. On this news the highest of the day was touched.

Light receipts and the strength in wheat held the corn market strong early, but later in the session prices broke quickly, with holders liquidating. Reports from the controlled the oat market early, but prices declined later in sympathy with the other grains. O'c'erings from the country for future shipment are By private wire to J. C. Exposition Passenger Rates To Be Taken Up Today.

A VERY LOW RATE IT WILL BE

Theil"Burlington". Brings Its Southern Headquarters to Atlanta - Fruit Shipments to the Northwest.

One of the most important meetings ever held by the rate committee of the Southern States Passenger Association will begin today at headquarters in the Equitable

Among the chief questions of importance that will arise will be the exposition rate. the summer tourists' rate and the general settlement of differences that have prevailed in southern rates.

The meeting will be largely attended, if signs count for aught, and all of the general passenger agents of the leading lines of the south will be in Atlanta today.

The special committee appointed by Commissioner Finley to report a plan of agreement on the basis of exposition rates held a meeting here yesterday. This committee consists of Hr. W. A. Turk, general passenger agent of the Southern; Mr. J. C. Haile, general passenger agent of the Central, and Mr. C. E. Harman, general passenger agent of the Western and At lantic, and they each declare that the rate to be reported to the general meeting today will be the lowest that has ever been given in the past by the passenger departments of the southern roads on occasions such as this.

There was a strong appeal made to the committee by the exposition directors for a low rate, and the managers of the exposition are assured that the rate will be all that they could ask. It will not be made known, of course, just what the rate is until the meeting has acted upon the report of the subcommittee, but it is un-derstood that it will not be more than 1

Another question of importance that will come before the meeting in Atlanta today will be the petition of the Travelers' Pro-tective Association, in which the drummers of the south ask that an arrangement may be made between all the roads of the asso-ciation by which 5,000-mile tickets can be used, good over any and all of the roads, at reduced rates. This matter has been before the passenger agents of various lines for quite a while.

At the last meeting it came up, but was not acted upon, having been placed in the hands of a special committee to make a report at this session of the general rate committee. None of the general passenger agents will turnish any definite information as to what will be done with the request, but it is believed by all that a full hearing will be given the committee on transportation, headed by Mr. E. E. Smith, of this city.

f this city. Several other important questions will come up for settlement, and it is easily predicted that the session of the rate committee will be interesting and important to an extreme degree.

THE SEABOARD'S TICKET DEAL. It Is Said in New York That the Raise Is in Name Only.

Yesterday was the day named for the restoration of standard rates on the part of the Seaboard Air-Line between the cities of the east and Atlanta.

The cheap rates established by the Seaboard under the title "boycott rates," which were about half the regular authorized rate by the Southern States Passen ger Association, were according to the articles of agreement and compromise signed by the Seaboard at Macon not many days ago to be stopped yesterday, and from that date the Seaboard was pledged to return to the old rates.

But there is a strange story told in The New York Morning Journal about this business, which can but interest the pas-senger agents who will gather in the convention of the rate committee of the Southern States Passenger Association to

What Is Said in New York. Says The New York Mornin

Says The New York Morning Journal:
"When the boycott on the Scaboard AirLine was raised a few days ago, it agreed to raise its rates to the point charged by the lines in the Southern Railroad, and Steamship Association. These will go into effect on June lith, the day before the meeting. It would now appear, according to New York ticket brokers, that this raise in rates is in name only.

to New York ticket brokers, that this raise in rates is in name only.

"It is now stated with great positiveness that brokers in New York, Baltimore, Boston, Washington, Norrolk and Richmond have been quietly told that for thirty days they may have tickets by way of the Seaboard Air-Line at the old boycott rates. This means that a ticket to Atlanta will cost the broker $11.

"The New York brokers have decided to gell them for $19, thus turning a pretty penny and making the raise in rates only on paper. Courtesy in return for favors during the boycott is the reason given for this kind treatment of the brokers. It this matter comes up at the meeting of the Southern States Passenger Association, things will be lively for the Seaboard Air-Line.

Line.

"The order for this move, it is said, was given directly from the line's home offices. All knowledge of it was denied at the company's New York headquarters. There was a different story elsewhere."

Seaboard Men Deny It. This story was news to the local Seaboard people yesterday, who declared they knew nothing of it, and said that so far as they knew the Seaboard was determined to carry out its part of the contract signed at Macon, when the boycott was lifted, to the full letter of the terms of

If there is any truth in the New York story whatever it is probable that the members of the rate committee of the Southern States Passenger Association will have something to say concerning the Seaboard's action in the matter.

Decidedly the most interesting event of today in the railroad world of the south is the meeting of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association in New York which is to take into consideration al matters pertaining to the promotion of the interests of the associated lines of this region for the coming year.

There will be more opposing factions centered there than were ever before gathered at the annual meetings of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association.

Referring to the probable outcome of the neeting, a New York paper has the following:

 "Most of the lines which run southward are members of the association, and in general it corresponds closely to the Trunk Line Association of the north in its effort to maintain rates.
 "At the meeting a strong and concerted effort will be made to restore harmony in order that things may be on a proper basis, particularly now that the big business to Atlanta is in prospect.

Besides, southern lines do not do a land office business in summer, and all hands must work together to make any money at all, not to speak of losing heavily.

"The chief lines out of the pool are the Norfolk and Western and the Seaboard Air-Line, Of these the Seaboard Air-Line, of the sociation to the association. This is a great change of heart, for only a few days ago the road was fighting the association to the almighty dollar is in sight and harmony must be secured at any price.

"The Norfolk and Western is still on the fence so far as joining the association is concerned. Strong pressure, however, has been brought to bear, to say nothing of some liberal inducements, and there is quite a probability now that this line, too, will make an application for admission to the fold.

"The question of a new agreement will come up. Trouble is expected over this.

the fold. "The question of a new agreement will come up. Trouble is expected over this, for some of the lines object to present rates and are anxious for a change. Others are not. This question alone would make the meeting a very important one. Well-informed railroad men all expect to see new rates south after the meeting.

Southern Hendquarters. Mr. Howard Elliott, general freight agen the Burlington route throughout all the territory south of the Ohio river, came to Atlanta yesterday to establish head-quarters here for the interests of the Bur-lington centering in the southern country. Offices were engaged in the Equitable building and they will be occupied by a full force of active and energetic agents on the 1st of July.

Mr. J. N. Merrill, formerly stationed at Nashville for the Burlington, will be in charge of the Atlanta headquarters as general southern agent.

Mr. A. E. Martin, formerly located in

The order has already been issued putting the project into effect and the southern headquarters of the famous Burlington will be brought to Atlanta on the 1st of July. "EVANSVILLE" ROUTE AND PEACHES This Popular System Makes a Hit with the Peach Growers of Georgia. There has for some time past been a great on with the railroads and the peach row on with the railroads and the peach growers of this state.

It is claimed by the fruit growers that the railroads have been "doing" them in the matter of rates to the markets of, the world. It was argued by several leading fruit growers at the recent meeting of the rate committee of the Southern Railway. ommittee of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association that the peach crop this year would have to rot on the trees unless the railroads came to the cue of the growers and gave a more corable rate to the great market centers

It is said that an effort was made on the part of certain lines north of the Ohio river to raise the freight per car on peaches to Chicago from $40.80 to $81.60. In this movement the "Evansville" route seems to have made a great hit with the fruit growers of Georgia by resisting the efforts of those lines that wished to make the raise. The outcome seems to be that the "Evansville" is getting the great bulk of the business out of middle Georgia this summer to the west, and Colonel Jack Cutler, general agent for this system, with headquarters in this city, is quite the toas in the orchards of south Georgia.

WATERMELONS GOING WEST.

They were likewise also routed by way of the Western and Atlantic, Louisville and Nashville and the Evansville.

A HARVEST OF SUITS NO CLEW FOUND YET

Litigation Yesterday.

Several Small Damage Suits Among Those Filed-A Lady Brings Suit for Damaged Corns-Other Court News.

A perfect flood of minor suits poured into Clerk Tanner's office yesterday, it being return day for the city court.

A number of the suits filed are against the city for damages, but the amounts asked for in most cases are small.

Mrs. Martha Nash filed a suit against the city, claiming damages to the amount of $150. She recites that during the snow last winter she was walking on a sidewalk that slanted out toward the street. She alleges that the city is responsible for the injuries received in the fall on account of the sloping condition of the sidewalk. She asks that the court award her the amount asked for on the grounds above stated.

Mrs. P. A. Smith wants damages to the amount of $150 and wants the city to pay it. She says that her property on Daniel street has been injured in that amount by the filling in of the street and believes that the city should make reparation.

An Insurance Company Sued. Quite a breeze was created in insurance circles on yesterday by the filing of a suit against the Equitable Life Assurance So-ciety. The parties filing the suit are well known and prominent business men of the city.

The suit was filed by Culberson and Blalock, attorneys for J. T. Blalock, administrator of the estate of C. W. Blalock.

The petition alleges that four years ago fr. W. B. Blalock insured his life in the Equitable Society for $5,000 and that he had the name of C. W. Blalock inserted in the policy as beneficiary. Last year both the in-sured and the beneficiary became dangerously ill. The petition further claims that during the serious illness of these gentle-men they were visited at their homes by an agent of the insurance company, and they charge that the agent tried to ge them to cancel the policy for a cash consideration of $1,000. This offer was refused and the agent called again and brought with him another agent and again it is claimed that the agents persisted in cancelling the policy on the payment of the amount

In a short time the gentlemen died and the heirs claim that the policy was only ac-cepted for one-half of its face value. They have now brought suit against the company for the remaining $2,500, which they claim has never been paid.

Mrs. Pattydola Jeter Brings Suit. An amusing suit was filed with the clerk yesterday. It was a voluminous document and contained a tale of woe sad to relate. The suit was filed by Mrs. Jeter and it is against the Jacobs pharmacy.

She alleges that for long years she has been a sufferer from terrible corns upon her toes. Finally the pain from that source became unbearable, and a friend advised the use of "One Night Corn Cure." She instructed her father to get her this rem-edy, and she says that he went to Jacobs's pharmacy. She alleges that the remedy sold her was not that which she desired, but that the firm said that it was just as good. An application of the cure she received did her no good, and instead the pair grew more intolerable. She spent many weary nights and life became a burden to her. She used more of the remedy, and it poisoned her feet, so the petition states. She grew worse and suffered great anxiety on that account. Now she places the damages done her by the use of this liniment at $1,000. Fell Through a Trap Door.

Mr. C. T. Lytle has filed suit against the proprietors of "The Holls" bar. He claims that he was walking down the street, and in passing he stepped upon the door that opens down into the cellar under their place of business. The doors, he says, gave way beneath his weight, and he was gave way beneath his weight, and he was precipitated fifteen feet into the cellar, badly injuring himself. He says his nose was broken and that he is disfigured for life, besides losing much time from his work on account of the injuries received.

Among the suits filed was one against onathan Norcross, and it was brought by

Mr. J. H. Gavan. Mr. Gavan alleges that he had a large stock of goods in the storeroom known as No. 14 Peachtree street and located in the building owned by Mr. Norcross. He states in his petition that he was badly damaged on account of his goods being exposed to the elements while repairs were being made on the old building just after it was damaged by fire.

He further says that he was promised protection, and that the repairs were long delayed, and that he suffered much loss on this account. The petition sets out that he had a long centract with the owner of the building, and that when the new building was erected the place he had formerly occupied was rented to other parties, notwithstanding that his lease had not expired. He says that he has been damaged greatly and was compelled to other quarters more expensive than he had at the time and that his rent is much higher. He wants Mr. Norcross to reimburse him in the amount of $5,165.

RESTING WELL.

Judge Andy Calhoun Passes the Day in Comfort Yesterday.

Judge Andy Calhoun, of the recorder' court, who had the misfortune to break his left leg by jumping from an electric car Mondar Light, rested well yesterday and in comfort.

The judge's broken limb was put in a plaster of paris frame yesterday morning by Dr. Willis Westmoreland and he was given the best attention that could be secured. His accident will confine him to his room for several weeks, however.

Clerk Tanner's Desk Littered with New | Detectives Search All Day for Smith, the Missing Money Lender.

RETURN DAY FOR THE CITY COURT DIVERS WORK ALL DAY AT THE LAKE

They Find No Signs of the Lost Man's Body-Many Worthless Clews Fol-lowed to the Ground.

The search for J. S. Smith, the private banker who disappeared over two weeks ago, continues with unabated vigor, but without apparent hope of success, no posttive clew having yet been discovered by the detectives.

The case is a remarkable one in many respects and has baffled the most astute and experienced men on the detective and police force, not only of Atlanta, but of other cities, who are anxious to selve the mystery of Smith's sudden disappearance.

The search being made at the old waterworks lake by Captain Sorcho and his assistants, under the direction of Detectives Looney and Cason, continued all day yesterday and will be renewed early this

Nothing whatever of a suspicious nature was discovered by the searchers, the work being a monotonous drag all day.

There are still many people, however, who hold to the belief that the missing man's body is at the bottom of the lake. The opinion that Smith was foully dealt with seems to be more prevalent than a few days ago and interest in the case has not waned to any great extent. A report was circulated yesterday that information as to the whereabouts of Smith could be obtained at a house on McDaniel street, but a searching investigation on that street by the detectives failed to soive the mystery.

Detectives Looney, Cason and Bedford are working up the case and they have run down several dozen worthless clews during the last three or four days without obtaining any valuable information

Almost every person in any way interested in the case has an opinion and suggestion to make as to the probable cause of Smith's disappearance or the probable present location of either his live or dead body, and many of the semi-clews have been followed to their end by the detectives and others. The belief that Martin Dalton, the Providence, R. L. crook who was arrested and taken to that city two or three days ago charged with murder, was implicated in the disappearance of Smith is discredited by the detectives. They do not think that Dalton knows anything about what became of Smith, regardless of the latter's acquaintance with the New Forders and the second of the acquaintance with the New England man The crisis in the case may be reached at any time now, it being likely that the search for Smith will result either in his discovery or he will be given up as lost This opinion seems to be warranted for the reason that the searchers will soon have exhausted the entire city and county in their efforts to find the missing man. An indictment for gambling has been found against Smith by the grand jury, and it has been suggested that perhaps he lost the large amount of money in his possession when last seen in a game and then skipped to escape prosecution for embez-zlement, the money belonging to other per-A considerable portion of the old water-

A considerable portion of the blu water-works lake was dragged in yesterday's search, and if the same progress is contin-ued it will not require much more time to complete the search there.

All of the opinions and beliefs as to the whereabouts and fate of Smith are-merely problematical and guess work, and so far as can be learned if he is found it will be by the merest accident. Smith's family has not yet given up hope of finding some clew that will lead to the discovery of their missing relative and lowed by an earthquake, leaving no trace. RUN OVER AND KILLED

Dan Heard, a Western and Atlantic Porter, Killed Yesterday Morning.

Dan Heard, a colored porter in the em ploy of the Western and Atlantic railroad was run over and fatally injured by a train of cars in the yards of that company yesterday morning.

Heard was carried to the Grady hospital immediately after the accident but his in-juries were so serious that he died within an hour after reaching there.

The negro ran between Atlanta and Chattanooga on a passenger train and arrived in the city at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. When his duties on the train and been performed at the union depot, he started for his home, near Foundry street, riding to that street on his own train as it backed out to the company's shops shortly after o'clock. When the train reached Foundry street Heard jumped off, as he was accus-tomed to doing, and started across the railroad tracks for his home. As he stepped of the track next to the one on which his train was backing out he was struck Ly freight car being switched in the opposi direction from which the passenger train was going. Coroner Paden held an inquest over the dead body of the negro yesterday afternoon and the verdict of the jury fully exonerated the railroad company from blame, the evidence showing that the accident was the resuit of the negro's carelessness.

Heard had been in the employ of the Western and Atlantic railroad for a number of years and was considered a reliable man the officials. He had a wife and two children.

Judge Hart Adjourns the Criminal Court Until Next Week.

THE HANVEY CASE SET FOR TRIAL

Five Minor Cases Heard in the Criminal Court Yesterday - Quiet in All the Courts.

Yesterday was return day in the city court and many suits were filed in the clerk's office. Besides the filing of the suits there was little work done at the courthouse, and the various courts adjourned for the day on account of the lack

In the criminal branch of the superior court Judge Hart presided yesterday, and during the morning hours he heard five cases.

The first case that was reached was that of the state vs. R. D. Dillard, alias Brown. The negro was arrested by the detectives several days ago, charged with forging the name of W. L. Fain to a check. He presented the check to J. B. Redwine and told that gentleman that Mr. Fain had sent him to his office for the purpose of having the check cashed. The forgery was a bad Job and Mr. Redwine at first glance saw that the negro had signed the name. Dillard was reported to the detectives and he was arrested and carried to a justice of the of the peace. He was bound over and in default of bond went to jail.

In jall the negro caused much excitement among the prisoners by raising his umbrel-la in the corridor and saying that he was prophet. Those who were inclined to be superstitious were greatly alarmed and were about to nob the negro when his offensive umbrella was taken from him. The negro, when arrested, claimed to be a Judge Hart, after hearing the testimony in the case, sentenced the forger to serve a five-year term in the penitentiary.

Other Cases Tried.

Charley Harris, another negro, was found guilty of an assault with attempt to murder. He was bound over several days ago and on yesterday was given two years at hard labor. Three other negroes were tried for petty crimes and were sentenced one year each In Judge Van Epps's Court. Several verdicts were rendered in Judge Van Epps's court yesterday and the entire

The Southern Paint and Glass Company was given a verdict for $122. The case has been of long standing, having been filed about three years ago. At that time the Southern Paint and Glass Company filed a suit against the Gate City bank for the amount of the verdict received yesterday.

The case was reached and the evidence docket was cleared

The case was reached and the evidence showed that the Southern Paint and Glass Snowed that the Southern Paint and Glass Company was furnishing Palmer Bros., the well-known painters, all the paint that was used by them. During the absence of Mr. Pendergrast, the president of the company, it is claimed that one of the firm of Palmer Bros. drew a check on the Gate City bank and indorsed the check by writing the signature of the Southern Paint ing the signature of the Southern Paint and Glass Company on the back, above his own name. The check was presented to the bank and was cashed.

Mr. Pendergrast claimed that the endorsement of the paper was not authorized and the bank should not have cashed it. There was rendered a verifict in the case in favor of the paint company for the mount of the suit

The Phoenix planing mill received a verdict of $129 against Mrs. J. H. McMillan. There were several other small cases heard and the court adjourned over until this morning. The docket was cleared and all the cases disposed of.

Adjourned Until Monday.

The criminal division of the superior court adjourned yesterday until Monday. Judge Hart, who has been presiding on the bench this week, left yesterday for his home. It is expected that he will return to the bench Monday and will hear the evidence in the Myers case
